

WATERWAYS MEN MEETING TODAY

RIVERS AND HARBORS CONGRESS OPENED IN WASHINGTON.

35,000 DELEGATES PRESENT

Convention is Largest of Kind Ever Held in United States—Taft Principal Speaker Today.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 7.—With one of the largest gatherings of waterway enthusiasts that ever assembled to discuss waterway improvements, the annual convention of the National Rivers and Harbors Congress met here today. It is planned to secure from congress a uniform system of appropriations for river and harbor improvements. There are 35,000 delegates in attendance.

President Taft was the chief speaker of the initial session of the convention. Governor Harmon of Ohio, Hon. Clifford Bitten of Canada, Champ Clark of Missouri and other speakers of note are to be heard at the subsequent sessions, which will continue over tomorrow and Friday. Congressman Joseph E. Ransdell of Louisiana is the presiding officer.

President Taft said the importance of river navigation had decreased of late years with the development of railroad facilities. The problem that now confronted his hearers, he declared, was the union and co-operation of railroads and rivers.

Terminal difficulties of river transportation must be overcome, the President said, before this problem could be solved. He believed that American ingenuity would yet find complete solution to all difficulties presented.

Ransdell Speaks. Opening the Rivers and Harbors congress today, President Ransdell advocated regular annual appropriations for carrying on the work of waterway improvements. He paid a high compliment to the board of United States engineers which pass upon such projects, and expressed gratification over the work accomplished as the result of encouragement from the congress. He declared the rivers and harbors act passed by the last session of congress was the greatest advance yet made in carrying out the policies of the national rivers and harbors congress.

Would Set Example. The ports of Mexico were discussed by Ambassador De LaBarra of Mexico, to the United States, who pointed out that other countries would profit from the example set by America in the improvement of its rivers and harbors.

STEBEN STATUE UNVEILED TODAY

AT WASHINGTON WITH GREAT MILITARY DEMONSTRATION

HIGH TRIBUTE TO PRUSSIA

Military Leader Who Reorganized the Continental Army After A Disaster at Valley Forge.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 7.—With a great display of military pomp and splendor and amid the enthusiastic demonstrations of immense crowds of spectators, the bronze statue of Baron Friedrich Wilhelm von Steuben, the Prussian military leader who reorganized the Continental army after the disastrous winter at Valley Forge and put it into condition for the successful campaigns that closed the American Revolution, was unveiled today. The statue completes the quartette of magnificent memorials erected at the four corners of Lafayette Square in honor of the four distinguished foreigners who lent the aid of their military genius to the cause of the American colonies. The others whose memorials have been thus honored are Lafayette, Rochambeau and Kosciuszko.

The president of the United States and members of the cabinet, the diplomatic corps, members of the Supreme Court of the United States, senators, representatives and many others prominent in official life were present at the unveiling this afternoon. Steuben has an eventful life, many brilliant features of military pageantry and at the same time given occasion for the manifestation of the strong bonds of friendship between Germany and the United States.

In the great military and civic parade that preceded the formal exercises the participants included thousands of members of German-American societies throughout the country, who mingled their cheers with those of the blue-jackets and soldiers, while at the same time the German colors were entwined with the stars and stripes, and the sound of the national airs of the "Fatherland" was heard along with "The Star-Spangled Banner."

President Taft and the members of the cabinet were escorted from the White House to the scene of the day's ceremonies by a troop of the Fifteenth Cavalry. Surrounding the statue great stands, decorated in the American and German colors, had been erected for the accommodation of distinguished guests. When the president arrived at the scene, the entire assemblage rose and greeted him with cheers.

Secretary of War Dickinson presided over the exercises of the day. In addition to the President the speakers included Count von Bernstorff, the German ambassador, Congressman Richard Bartholdt of Missouri, and Dr. Charles J. Drexler of Philadelphia, president of the National German-American Alliance.

As the President concluded his address, his daughter, Helen Taft, caught up the cord to the flag enveloping the statue, and the massive bronze figure emerged through the folds of bunting. At the same time the bands played and the Third Field Artillery boomed forth a major-general's salute of thirteen guns. It was an inspiring moment, and, led by President Taft, the entire assemblage joined in cheering.

The statue, the work of Albert Juegers, was admired by everyone who saw it. It represents the famous Prussian as a general of cavalry in continental uniform. The form is half enveloped in a voluminous military cloak which flows both hands, one of which rests upon the concealed bill of his sword. The Order of Knighthood, conferred upon him by Frederick the Great, hangs upon his breast, and the military coat is unbuttoned and thrown back. The statue stands eleven feet from the spurred boots to the cocked hat.

The pedestal on which the bronze statue stands is nearly twenty feet high. It is of granite and is flanked by two bronze groups. One of these is entitled "Commemoration." It represents America, a female figure, instructing a youth in the history of his country. She is seated, and the lad is kneeling at her feet and holding up before her the roll from which she is reading. The companion group is called "Military Instruction." A soldier in the prime of life, in a full uniform, is standing. The companion group is called "Military Instruction." A soldier in the prime of life, in a full uniform, is standing. ## SALE OF STAMPS IS PROGRESSING

People Of Janesville Are Buying Many Of The W. A. T. A. Stickers For Xmas Packages and Letters. The sale of the Christmas stamps of the Wisconsin Anti-Tuberculosis association has been commenced in this city and is progressing nicely. The people are much interested in the work and while sales have just begun and are not as large as they will be as the Christmas season draws nearer, there is every indication that the record made by Janesville last year in the purchase of the stickers will be exceeded. Miss Louise Merrill has charge of the stamp sales in the city.

Among the numerous competitions arranged by the Wisconsin Anti-Tuberculosis association to stimulate the sale of Christmas seals and to materially assist the battle against consumption in all localities, the one limited to cities of 8,000 to 55,000 population, and bringing as a reward these services of an expert visiting nurse, is arousing exceptional interest.

The twelve cities in this class making the highest per capita sale will participate in the reward. An expert nurse has been engaged for one year, and she will spend one month in each of the twelve winning cities. The city making the highest per capita sale of the twelve winners will receive the benefit of the nurse's visit in precedence over the others, and the remaining cities will be visited in the order of their sale.

A number of cities engaged in this competition have already enjoyed the privilege of a visiting nurse's services, but the great majority have yet to receive the advantages of such services. The visiting nurse is just what the sick and the poor in their homes and launders into their problems with a view to helping them and providing relief. It is a fact that many cities are misdirecting their relief work because no attempt has been made to study conditions and apply such relief to best advantage. Relief money has thus been virtually wasted, in many cases. In solving the local tuberculosis problem, the visiting nurse is a most important factor.

STORIES OF CAMP AND WAR

CAPTURE SMALL GRIST MILL

Detachment of Missouri Cavalry Make Raid and Bag Lot of Rebels and Horses.

Our three years' service expired Aug. 9, 1864, and on the 17th Lieut. Groves, in command of 14 men of Co. A and 12 of Co. B, 7th Mo. Cav., left Pine Bluffs, Ark., at daylight on a secret march of 32 miles south to a grist mill, which Gen. Clayton was anxious to know whether the rebels were operating. We were guided by Columbus Marr, who lived in the neighborhood of the mill. He was loyal and brave.

About noon we stopped back of a field, where the guide's mother, a widow, lived, and about three miles from the mill. As soon as our horses were rested we started for the mill through the timber. We had not gone far until we could hear the throbbing of the engine, writes W. H. Craven, sergeant Co. A, 7th Mo. Cav., of Milton, Iowa, in National Tribune. We went within 80 rods of the mill, when the lieutenant concealed the command in a thicket and gave us orders to remain quiet until his return. He and the guide left.

In about an hour they returned, having gone inside the rebel camp to a house which was not more than 200 yards from the mill, occupied by a Union family. As our guide was personally acquainted with the family and knew he could trust them, he had one of the girls go to the mill under the guise of having some milling done, and get all the information she could in regard to the location of their camp and the number of soldiers there, which she did.

The lieutenant called us around him and said: "Gen. Clayton sent me to find out whether or not the rebels were running the mill, which they are. There are 100 men running and guarding it; there are 70 now at the mill and 30 on a scout between here and Pine Bluffs, and have started since noon. Two miles south of the mill is their main camp, occupied by 4,000 infantry and cavalry, with two sections of artillery. I have fulfilled my mission. It is up to you if we go any farther."

A tall, lank fellow by the name of Nichols straightened himself up, and said: "Lieutenant, we don't want to use ourselves up like we did today without getting one shot." "All right," said the lieutenant, "mount your horses."

We were now about 80 rods north-east of the mill, and their camp was 200 southwest. We made a circuit until we were almost west of their camp and about 200 yards from it, when we halted, and the lieutenant told Sergt. Smith of Co. B, to take 12 men of his company and charge the camp, and he would take the 14 from Co. A and charge the mill, and gave me orders to take those left of Co. A and not come into the mill yard until all of the men were in.

The rebels were surprised, and did not discover our presence until Sergt.

Kicked Up the Straw and Applied the Torch.

Smith with his squad rode into their camp and demanded their surrender and opened fire on them. Those that did not surrender took to the woods and left their horses, and those running the mill rushed out to see what the commotion was, only to find the mill yard in possession of Co. A. It was then about 6 o'clock in the evening, and a heavy rain storm was brewing, which I have always thought was our salvation. The lieutenant called us together, and gave us orders to set fire to their camp, get all the horses ready, detail a guard for the prisoners and be ready to march in the quickest time possible.

I gathered up a firebrand, out of their campfire, and started in the first tent in the line, and kicked up the straw and applied the torch.

In a few moments we were on the march, and by this time the rain was falling in torrents. The lieutenant, instead of starting towards the bluffs, started on the road to the main rebel camp, but only followed it until we were out of sight of the houses that surrounded the mill, and then took to the woods again.

We got into Pine Bluffs the next morning about 1 o'clock.

The Mexican Flag. The Mexican flag, whose colors are white, green and red, representing religious purity, unity and independence, had its origin in what are styled the "three guarantees," which were the principal clauses of the "Plan of Iguala," published February 24, 1820, by Agustin de Iturbide, afterward Emperor of Mexico.

Why, when I was a young man, I used frequently to work all night to earn money to buy books, and then get up before daylight to read them."

THE MESSAGE.

The President's message is characteristic of the man—a clear, logical statement of conditions as they exist, with such recommendations as seem necessary. The principal bone of contention, the tariff, will continue to be a disturbing element until settled through a tariff commission, one scheduled at a time. The part of the message which the business and industrial world will endorse most heartily is contained in the following paragraph:

"I do not now recommend any amendment to the anti-trust law. In other words, it seems to me that the existing legislation with reference to the regulation of corporations and the restraint of their business has reached a point where we can stop for a while and witness the effect of the vigorous execution of the laws on the statute books in restraining the abuses which certainly did exist and which roused the public to demand reform.

"If this law develops a need for further legislation, well and good, but until then let us execute what we have. Due to the reform movements of the present decade, there has undoubtedly been a great improvement in business methods and standards and in the earnestness of effort on the part of business men to comply with the law. They are now seeking to know the exact limitations upon business methods imposed by the law, and these will doubtless be made clearer by the decisions of the supreme court in cases pending before it.

"I believe it to be in the interest of all the people of the country that for the time being the activities of government, in addition to enforcing the existing law, be directed toward the economy of administration and the enlargement of opportunities for foreign trade, the building up of home industries, and the strengthening of confidence of capital in domestic investment."

The President realized that the country needs a rest from agitation, and that time will be required to assimilate the legislation already enacted. Regulatory laws have been ground out so rapidly that it was simply impossible for business to keep pace with them. It is to be hoped that the President's call for a halt, will be heeded.

ROOSEVELT AND INSURGENCY.

That an effort will be made by the insurgents to keep Colonel Roosevelt in the limelight as the leader of the uplift movement was evidenced at a little dinner party in New York yesterday, when seven choice spirits assembled to take the colonel's pulse and note his temperature.

Prominent among the guests was our own President Van Hise of the University of Wisconsin, who is reported to be of the opinion that Col. Roosevelt should remain active in politics, being careful, however, not to identify himself with the conservative element of the republican party. It seemed almost as if he had brought a message from La Follette, and one which may have the presidency of 1912 in view.

There was a general exchange of opinion. Some went so far as to say to Roosevelt that had he been the candidate for governor of New York he would have triumphed by 200,000 plurality and the democracy would have lost the legislature and therefore the United States senatorship. Others voiced the opinion that had Col. Roosevelt been a candidate this fall there would have been no democratic triumph throughout the city. Some ventured to suggest that he should seriously consider whether or not he would put himself in the position of leader of those of the republican party who are called insurgents. This little coterie of men represent nothing but individual opinion. Col. Roosevelt is temporarily, if not permanently, disabled, as a political leader and his only salvation is in a reunited party. The state of New York would not support him for any kind of an office and without the backing of his own state his name would not be mentioned in the convention in 1912.

Col. Roosevelt has no illusions respecting the personal meaning of the recent election. He is reported to have said that if there be a great impairment of prestige of a party leader that is usually a permanent impairment. It has rarely happened in our history that a great leader who has lost his prestige ever regained it with his party.

GOVERNMENT OWNERSHIP.

A recent dispatch from Washington says: "Unionism exacts an annual tribute of $778,000 from one bureau alone of the United States government. * * * This $778,000 represents the amount that would be saved annually by the federal government if power presses were introduced into the bureau in place of the old hand roller presses now used in turning out bonds, notes and checks. An act of congress passed in 1898 at the instance of union labor has prevented the introduction of this economy."

This is a fair sample of how business is conducted by the government. The linotype machine, which does the work of half a dozen hand-compositors, has been in general use for the past twenty years, and yet the government refused to install them until five years ago, and today only has a limited supply.

The hand roller presses referred to above, have been out of date for many years; so much so that they are only found as relics in junk shops. With this kind of an equipment and an 8 hour day force to run it the government is certainly "playing horse" with an unsuspecting public.

The smelting committee, which has been going through the various departments, for the past few months, should employ a practical man outside the union, and make another tour of the plant shop. There are other leaks which need plugging up before we take over the railroads and other public utilities.

GRAFT IN TURKEY.

The Boston Transcript thus relates an experience in municipal lighting in Turkey, which indicates that graft is not confined to this country.

"The true insincerity of Turkish finances during the old regime is illustrated with sufficient fidelity to fact by a story, current in Constantinople, of the manner in which the streets of the capital were lighted. Going about the city one dark night, the sultan stumbled often, and was chastened by the indignity to which he was thereby subjected. The next day he summoned the grand vizier and entrusted to him a million piastres to be expended in providing lights for all the streets.

"The grand vizier sent for the minister of the interior and handed him 750,000 piastres, with the explanation that his majesty had determined upon the outlay of such an amount to have the city lighted. The minister of the interior sent for the mayor, conveyed to him the same information, and turned over to him 500,000 piastres.

"The mayor sent for the superintendent of streets, and handed him 450,000 piastres. The superintendent called in the chief men in the different wards, and divided 400,000 piastres among them, with instructions to purchase lamps and oil. Each pocketed half of the sum committed to him, and expended the rest according to instructions. Then the street beggars drank up the oil in the lamps. And thus was Constantinople lighted."

The government has run against a snag in the ship building business. Provision was made at the last session of congress for building the new battleship "New York," and work has been started at the government navy yard. It now develops that the appropriation is insufficient as Secretary Meyer has discovered that under the 8 hour law it costs 20 per cent more to build ships than when the 10 hour law prevailed. The congress now in session will be asked for $1,500,000 more to complete the "New York," as the 8 hour day is too sacred to be disturbed.

The insurgents in the senate are likely to make life a burden to President Taft during the short session of congress. They demand that candidates for the supreme court be in sympathy with the insurgent movement, and will oppose the confirmation of any appointees who are not. They are flushed with victory and propose to make the most of it.

Wisconsin's senior senator declines to call on the President, but writes him a letter instead. He is supposed to represent aggressive insurgency and unless the President comes to the front with insurgent candidates for the supreme court, there will be something doing.

Mr. Bryan is rattling around like a dry pond in a pod. He is loaded with all sorts of advice to the democratic party and is ready for any emergency.

Stop That Cough in a Minute

Would you give morphine or chloroform to your baby or take it yourself? Of course not. Yet most patent cough cures contain one or both. They stop a cough in a minute, which is dangerous. A cough should be cured internally, by healing the lungs, loosening the phlegm, throwing it out, which is done by coughing. Badger Cough Balsam does not contain morphine or chloroform. It is made by perspiration from bloodroot, lobelia, pine bark, wild cherry, etc. It cures a cough in a few days without filling the lungs with poisonous phlegm. The lungs with poisonous phlegm heal without danger of pneumonia. It's safe for children or old people. Got a bottle today for 25 cents. Badger Cough Balsam is made by Mr. Penning, our Graduate Pharmacist and Chemist, Badger Drug Co., Milwaukee and River streets.

Fifty graduates of Chicago medical schools were recently examined by the Illinois State Board of Health, and twenty-six failed to stand the test. The state is to be congratulated.

I have my views of right and wrong, and they are strict and straight no man can my approval gain, unless he takes my gait. He must admit that I'm the found of virtue and of truth; I am a beacon for the old, a signpost for the young; he must admit that when I speak all little dogs should hush; when I say I say "Go," he'll rush. And if he should dispute my word, or in obedience fail, the proper place for him to be is in the county jail. Some spineless creatures say to me that amuse me is the goal to touch the hard and sinful hearts in human neighborhoods, they say that men are mostly good, and open to appeals—but I believe in hanging men, and breaking them on wheels. Alas, a soft, decadent age has banished black and rack; we can't now bait offenders now, or drown them in a sack! We cannot use the iron boot, or hog them or impale, but we can surely fashion laws to send them all to jail!

JESSE BISE NOW IN PENNSYLVANIA

Chief Appleby Gets An Answer to a Series of Letters Directed to Various Points.

Through a series of letters which he mailed to various points, Chief Appleby has succeeded in locating Jesse Bise, former clerk in W. J. Bates' grocery store who is wanted for taking and diverting to his own use a check for $13.19 drawn in favor of his employer by P. A. Pederson. Bise had been in the habit of running over to the Nichols Co. store to get bills changed and the check was converted into money of small denominations without question when he presented it after banking hours on Saturday, Nov. 26.

Bise, replying to Chief Appleby's letter advising him to promptly refund the money unless he wished to be arrested and brought back here, writes from West Middletown, Washington county, Pennsylvania, under date of Dec. 6, as follows:

"I will send the money to you for that amount inside a week or two. The reason it was the way it happened was because my mother was dead and I was bound to come, and no way out of it. I hope you will forgive me this time, not for my sake but for hers only, because I thought a whole lot of her. I will send it positively all to you. Send the rest of my mail to the above address because I am here at my aunt's. Thanking you very much for your kindness.

Yours,
JESSE BISE.

Answer soon." Mr. Bates has informed Chief Appleby that since Bise took his sudden departure it has come to light in several instances that money given to the youth to purchase certain wares at other grocery stores when the stock of one thing or another happened to be temporarily depleted, was not paid. He estimates these "oversights" at about $20. The Nichols Co. management thinks that in view of the fact that Mr. Bates, through his employees, had made a practice of asking for the accommodation of change, he should stand good for this loss, particularly as the check itself, save for the spurious acknowledgment, was perfectly good. Mr. Bates thinks otherwise. According to some acquaintances of Bise, his mother died about fifteen years ago.

PLAN TO GIVE POOR PEOPLE MERRY XMAS

Salvation Army Will Give Dinners To Sixty Families and City Missionary Kimball Will Dispense Supplies.

Sixty families of Janesville poor people will be fed by the Salvation Army at Christmas time this year, according to the plans now being made by Captain R. A. Fleming, officer in charge of the local corps. The spread given the needy ones will, as planned, be more elaborate than ever before and will bring the true spirit of the holiday into many homes. An endeavor will be made to secure enough supplies to furnish each family with two baskets filled with good things and to this end, Captain Fleming solicits donations of food or cash. Twenty-four articles will be included in the two baskets given each family. This will probably be the last Christmas dinner of which the captain will have charge in this city. The articles desired are: Sixty chickens, about four pounds each; sixty pounds each of sugar, rice, coffee, tea, and butter; sixty quarts of cranberries; sixty bunches of celery; sixty cans each of corn and peas sixty quarts of preserves; sixty glasses of jelly; sixty cabbage; sixty quarts of navy beans; thirty dozen each of bananas and oranges; thirty pecks of apples; sixty quarts of onions; sixty bars of toilet soap; sixty 25-lb. sacks of flour; and sixty packages of crackers. Money orders and checks will be accepted when made out to the order of the Salvation Army and should be sent to Captain Fleming at 101 North Main street.

At the Mission.

An appeal for supplies is also made by Mary Kimball, city missionary, for use in her work at the mission. Her request is general for supplies of all kinds. Clothing is required as the demand is greater than the stock on hand and bedding is another necessity desired. On account of poor health Miss Kimball will be unable to serve the usual Christmas dinner to the poor at the mission, but she will accept and see to the distribution of groceries, meat and other food supplies for the needy. Cash donations will also be accepted to provide Christmas dinners for the poor.

DR. WOODS' AUTO RAN AWAY TODAY

A Tree at the Foot of the Court House Park Checked Its Mad Career—One Wheel Crippled.

"Some day your machine will run away if you leave the engine running like that," said Dr. Mann to Dr. Woods at the hospital at 8:30 this morning. At nine o'clock the prophecy was verified. The machine had been left in front of the residence on Court street and all of a sudden started down hill with nobody at the steering wheel. Near the foot of the incline the machine climbed over the curb and ran into a good sized shade tree in the court house park. The tree refused to budge. When rescued and brought back to its moorings one rear wheel of the runabout wobbled in a very searful fashion.

VAN HISE WAS NOT LAFOLLETTE'S AID

Denies That His Recent Dinner With Col. Roosevelt in New York Had Political Significance.

(Special to this Gazette.)
Madison, Wis., Dec. 7.—President Charles R. Van Hise of the University of Wisconsin, when interviewed today in regard to the statements made in one of the Chicago papers yesterday morning by its Washington correspondent, concerning his luncheon with Col. Roosevelt in New York some time ago, said that his visit in New York City was made as trustee of the Carnegie Foundation for the Advancement of Teaching; that he was no way the messenger of Senator La Follette; and that so far as he was aware Senator La Follette did not know of his visit to New York City.

President Van Hise stated that he and President H. S. Pritchard of the Carnegie Foundation were invited by Col. Roosevelt to meet some of the editors of the Outlook. Much of the discussion, President Van Hise added, was in reference to the Outlook and its work; in fact, the luncheon seemed to be one of a series in which the editors meet to discuss the policy to be pursued by the magazine.

AGED ROCKTON LADY DIES AFTER LONG RESIDENCE ON THE SAME FARM

(By United Press.)
Beloit, Dec. 7.—Mrs. F. W. Peckard, aged 87, a resident of Rockton, near here, 72 years, died this morning in the house where she was married 57 years ago. She is survived by her husband, aged 92.

BOB MOHA AFTER WELTER-WEIGHT CHAMPIONSHIP.

Milwaukee, Wis.—Whether or not Bob Moha has a good right to make a claim for the welterweight championship, will be demonstrated in this city when he clashes with Jimmy Gardner in the near future. Gardner claims the title; so does Mike "Twin" Sullivan, Jimmy Clabbe and Bob Moha. However, Clabbe is out of the running because Moha, who is known as "Handsome Bob," gave him a thrashing just before Jimmy went to Australia with Billy Paake and Johnny Thompson. Tommy Loughery, once a star lightweight, also wanted a look-in for the title but Moha handed a beating to the Pennsylvania boy less than two weeks ago.

The two fighters who should be given the greatest consideration in an effort to annex the title are Jimmy Gardner of Lowell and Mike Sullivan. Should Moha defeat Gardner there will be only one man to block his path to the championship. That man is Sullivan. Arrangements are now being made to have Sullivan come here and fight Moha the middle of December, providing Moha beats Gardner.

Moha has been fighting several years, but for a long time was the "black sheep" in the boxing world. Milwaukee conducted shows about every two weeks for many years past, but it was always hard hard for Bob to get a match. But this year it is different and match-makers throughout the country are seeking his services. Of course his victory over Jimmy Clabbe brought him prominently before the boxing public. After his fight with Clabbe, "Handsome Bob" welcomed the daylight on the hillside lane, the Canadian champion in one round in Buffalo. Last week he gave Tommy Loughery of Manyuk, Pa., the worst beating the latter ever received.

Victories over Jimmy Gardner and Mike "Twin" Sullivan, will mean the welterweight championship for Bob

Moha, known also as "Handsome Bob" and "Wild Bob."

A SINCERE RECOMMENDATION.

Mr. D. C. Prosser, Bravo, Allegan Co., Mich., writes: "Two years ago I was badly afflicted with catarrh of the stomach. I had had a run of typhoid fever, was very depleted. I could find nothing I could eat without causing distress and sour stomach. Finally I came to the conclusion that I had catarrh of the stomach and seeing Peru-na advertised, began to take it. It helped me soon, and after taking three or four bottles I was entirely cured of stomach trouble, and can now eat anything."

The Evening Chit-Chat

By RUTH CAMERON.

There is a little new mother across the street from us, who, because she seems to all of us such a young and helpless mite to have charge of another even younger and more helpless mite, is the constant recipient of wise advice and suggestions and "how-to-did-it" from all the mothers in the neighborhood.

Most of this she receives willingly—no, avidly.

But the other day she rebelled.

This is how it happened.

The lady who is born with a mania for regulating everyone's affairs came in to see the baby.

She admired him enthusiastically enough to suit even the little mother, and then she started to regulate. Had she done it in the direct frank way of the other mothers there would have been no trouble at all, but instead she went about it this way:

Addressing the baby: "So he was a budum, budum little baby, but why didn't he tell his mother that she had his little garters too tight so they drew his little legs right up?"

"Oh, did he yawn, was he real sleepy? Bless his little heart. He must tell his mother that he needs a longer nap in the morning than she gives him."

When she took her departure after half an hour's conversation thickly jeweled with modest pearls of insinuated wisdom like the above, the little mother came back from seeing her to the door with tightly shut lips and a flame of resentment on her cheeks.

"Toll the lady the next time she comes here that your mother wouldn't do a thing she said, just because she said it all in such a silly, silly way," she admonished the baby solemnly, and then in answer to my laugh, "Oh yes, I suppose I will, because she knows such a lot, but don't you hate hints?"

To which question, though I should call the suggestions of the lady who has come to regulate other people's affairs rather too broad for hints, I was able to give a warm affirmative.

Don't you?

Do you know anything more exasperating, for instance, than to have someone with whom you have been talking ten minutes on the telephone begin to hint that she is going out that evening instead of telling you frankly the moment you called up that she had an engagement and would rather you called up the next night, which you would have been entirely obliged to do?

To unnecessary frankness in the speaking of disagreeable things I am a most militant foe.

But to frankness and directness in the matter of necessary facts, as opposed to hints, I am as vigorous a friend.

Commend me for a friend to that kind of person who never says a disagreeable or critical thing unless it will do some good, and when he thinks it will, says it frankly and plainly instead of hinting.

The Kitchen Cabinet

There is a spot of earth upon which all the rest of the world is built.

A dearest, sweeter spot than all the rest: Where shall that land, that spot of earth be found?

Art thou a man? A patriot? Look around. Oh, thou shalt find how'er thy footsteps roam.

That land, thy country, and that spot thy home.

French Dishes.

So deeply rooted and grounded are we in the belief that French cookery is the sine qua non of that art that the impression lingers after the fact that has been demonstrated that though France knows much, she does not know all. Mark Twain, who appreciated a good dinner and had also the courage of his convictions, wrote in his pleading way, of the ordinary dinner, served as it is in Europe by the French cook:

"The European dinner is better than the European breakfast, but it has its drawbacks; it does not satisfy." We must admit, however, that the French have distinguished us in matters of economy. They look with dismay upon the huge roasts and steaks which are found on many American tables.

Onion Soup With Eggs and Cream.

This is a delicious soup. Take six white onions, cut fine, and fried a light brown in a tablespoonful of butter. Then add a quart of boiling water and one pint of milk, season with a teaspoonful of salt and a dash of pepper, a pinch of mace and a dash of nutmeg. Cook slowly for an hour and strain. Chop four eggs to a foam, add a cupful of cream, and one tablespoonful of cornstarch mixed with a little cold water; cook for a few minutes to remove the raw taste of the cornstarch, then add the eggs, as the soup must not be boiled after the eggs are added, so that will curdle the soup.

Cream Fritters.

Take one quart of milk, one cup of sugar, one tablespoonful of butter, a half teaspoonful of salt, a cup of blanched and chopped almonds, flavor with orange. Scald the milk, add a tablespoonful of cornstarch mixed with a little cold water. Add the sugar, butter and salt and cook ten minutes. Then add six well-beaten eggs, spread on a lard tin in a buttered pan and cool. When firm cut in strips an inch wide and three inches long; roll carefully in the crumbs; dip in beaten egg and fry in deep fat. Drain on paper and serve hot.

By-Product of Match Factory.

One match factory on the Pacific coast, covers 210 acres and operates over 30 miles of railroad, over which is carried to it daily 200,000 feet of sugar pine and yellow pine logs for the match machines. Inferior lumber will not do. It must be straight grained and free from knots and carefully treated in addition. The by-product goes into larger things. This factory turns out as by-product a thousand doors and 800 window sashes daily.

Terrible Suffering.

Eczema All Over Baby's Body.

"When my baby was four months old his face broke out with eczema, and at sixteen months of age, his face, hands and arms were in a dreadful state. The eczema spread all over his body. We had to put a mask or cloth over his face and tie up his hands. Finally we gave him Hood's Sarsaparilla and in a few months he was entirely cured. Today he is a healthy boy." Mrs. Inez Lewis, Barling, Maine.

Hood's Sarsaparilla cures blood diseases and builds up the system.

Get it today in usual liquid form or chocolate tablets called Sarsatabs.

Going Motoring.

Have you seen the new knitted hoods with border and ties that are brought round the neck, cross in front and the low at back? They are quite shape like the caps of early Tudor reign.

Another quaint motor cap of velvet folds with braids or cretonne border in lighter tone, ornamented on each side with a huge velvet colored button mold, is peaked like the caps of colonial days.

A close-fitting motor bonnet for cold weather is of fine colored bonnet with the brim turned back on the fullest crown to a depth of five inches and studded on edge with small silk rosettes.

The soft full rosette so that it comes midway between the ear and the top of the head on the left side. These rosettes are all made very much in the same way and require a yard and a half of ribbon in the softest satin from six to seven inches wide. Twenty-two inches should be allowed for the band which is worn over the head. The remainder of the ribbon should be gathered into loops varying from three and one-half to three inches long. These are formed into a large rose shape at the side and fastened with a twist of the ribbon through the middle. If desired an end or two may be left, but the rose is prettier without them.

For the older girl a band of black velvet will just fasten about the hair after it is pulled and rolled is ornamented with tiny colored roses made of soft satin ribbon. These are placed in groups of four at the top, sides and back. To make the roses will require one and a third yards of satin ribbon in a three-fold length and double through the middle. Roll around in a short leaping as you roll. If rolled a little loosely and held in place firmly with the thread the resemblance to small button roses is very close.

For the young lady who attends evening parties, a wreath of green leaves fastened in an invisible wire frame should be just long enough to finish about the neck with a rose of silk. This may be fastened securely by the same three sewing on two short hair pins by which the wreath is fastened to the half of the wearer.

or the elderly lady who is still devious of following the fashion and who dresses her hair rather elaborately by the black band with a row of jeweled clasps is charming. If still youthful the three bands of narrow black velvet with a rather pecky bow for one side is becoming.

A small fancy pin is sometimes used to hold the young girl's bandeau in place. A filigree (daisy or one) white pin, mother-of-pearl or filigree are pretty. Placed at the top of the rosette the loops slanted downward like a drooping rose, the effect is very becoming.

A box to hold the bandeau is a handy and timely gift which the family boy might make. Such a box should be at least 18 inches long by 10 inches wide with a depth of 4 inches. This will allow the ribbon to lie at full length of the bandeau and not crumple the rosette. The box should be divided into three compartments and, if lined, may have a perforated pad. An enameled finish is just as pretty and far more useful as it admits of a more thorough cleansing than a fabric. The outside may be finished to match the dresser or enameled, and a silver initial mounted on one corner. Lack and glass may be very ornamental and the gift made of artistic value.

COLEMAN FOUND DEAD IN HIS ROOM

Well Known Musical Composer and Director Kills Self.

LOST FORTUNE OF $3,000,000

His Act Was Evidently Premeditated as He Recently Asked Dr. Maps Easiest Way to End Life—Grieved for Dead Wife.

Pasadena, N. J., Dec. 7.—Charles Jerome Coleman, a one-time millionaire, and well known musical director and composer, committed suicide in his room in a fashionable boarding house. His body was found after the odor of escaping gas from his room had been detected. In his pocket was one of his cards, on the back of which was written: "Suicide."

The body was discovered by Dr. Howard L. Maps, who lives next door and who was sent for when Mr. Coleman failed to respond to repeated raps on his door. Dr. Maps found Coleman lying on the bed with a gas jet open near him. He had been dead two or three hours.

Mr. Coleman left no explanation for his act, but he is said to have lost a fortune of $3,000,000 within the last few years and to have been in reduced circumstances. His wife died two years ago and friends say that he never entirely recovered from his grief. That his act was premeditated is evident from the fact that he recently asked Dr. Maps the easiest way to end one's life. The doctor made an evasive answer, not because he suspected that Mr. Coleman was thinking of suicide, he said, but because he considered it bad policy to tell anybody the easiest road to death.

Although a poor boy, Mr. Coleman won fame and fortune through his musical ability. He was educated at Harvard and for many years was the university organist.

For a number of years he was leader of a symphony society in Boston and later went to New York, opening a vocal studio in east Eleventh street. Several musical productions netted him big money, but he was deprived of some of his royalties and also lost heavily in speculation. He had lived in Pasadena four years and was the organizer and first director of the Pasadena Glee club. He leaves two sons, George, of Philadelphia, and Charles Jerome, Jr., of Cincinnati.

TRIES IN VAIN TO SAVE BABY

Farmer's Wife Sustains Severe Burns After Being Overcome by Smoke.

Bloomington, Ind., Dec. 7.—In attempting to save the life of her 4-month-old babe, who was asleep in the house while the building was burning, Mrs. Charles Taylor, 43 years old, wife of a farmer, was overcome and severely burned about the head and face.

The child was cremated as the house was reduced to ashes. Mrs. Taylor was in the kitchen, which was detached from the dwelling, and the baby was sleeping in the other part of the house when sparks from a grate ignited the building.

RAILWAY TRAINS IN COLLISION

Passenger Hits Freight and Both Engines Are Derailed.

Holland, Mich., Dec. 7.—Traffic on the main line of the Pere Marquette railway, near Waverly, was tied up for several hours owing to a head-on collision between a northbound passenger and a southbound freight. Both trains were running slow and no one was injured.

The two engines were derailed and stripped of their pilots. The freight train was late in backing on a siding when the passenger train came along and a collision was unavoidable.

EXPLOSION SHAKES TOWNS

One Workman Believed Killed by Boston Water Works Blast.

Boston, Mass., Dec. 7.—An explosion of dynamite at Waban Hill, a Boston suburb, was felt in a dozen towns of Greater Boston with all the violence of an earthquake and gave rise to numerous reports of disaster.

The explosion occurred at a point where the Boston Water Works company is blasting for a new water supply tunnel. One workman is believed to have been killed and it is probable that the damage to the half-completed tunnel will be considerable.

GARY REFUTES RUMOR

Chairman of Steel Trust Says Gary Mills Will Not Close.

Admits Number of Men Employed Is Less Than Year Ago, But Needs Are Not So Great.

New York, Dec. 7.—Judge E. H. Gary, chairman of the United States Steel corporation, discussed conditions in the iron and steel industries. The exact occasion for Judge Gary's remarks was a rumor that the steel corporation had laid off 20,000 men or was about to do so and that the celebrated plant at Gary was soon to be shut down. These reports Mr. Gary emphatically denied, explaining, however, that such erroneous prophecies might arise from his own recent statement that the corporation was running in the neighborhood of 50 per cent of capacity.

In answer to a query as to the effect upon labor of the curtailment in steel production, Judge Gary said that at this time last year the corporation had in its employ about 215,000 men, whereas now it has only about 185,000 or 190,000. The last figures were compiled in August, since which time there has been practically no change in the number of men employed.

MANY HIT IN BATHTUB CASE

Individuals and Firms Accused at Detroit of Controlling Output.

Detroit, Dec. 7.—The federal grand jury here indicted thirty-two individuals and sixteen firms alleged to control 85 per cent of the annual output of bathtubs in the United States.

This is one of the biggest hauls so far as individual prosecutions are concerned, that the department of justice has ever made under the anti-trust law. If the officers are convicted they will be liable to jail sentences and the department will, no doubt, bend every effort to have such punishment meted out instead of fines. The sixteen companies also were indicted as corporate ones.

HUGE COPPER MERGER

Properties With Capital of $26,500,000 Involved in Deal.

Deal Consummated at Meeting of Directors of Companies Concerned Held in City of Chicago.

Chicago, Dec. 7.—A copper deal, involving properties capitalized at $26,500,000 was consummated here at a meeting of the directors of the companies involved. Under the terms of the consolidation agreement reached the Superior and Pittsburgh copper mines at Bisbee, Ariz., will be merged with the Calumet and Arizona property, which adjoins it. The exchange was made on a basis of approximately three and one-half to one.

By consolidating the two properties, the operating expenses of each will be very materially reduced. The Calumet and Arizona company owns a large smelter which is at present handling the ore of both mines, and has approximately $4,000,000 cash on hand. The other company has no smelter and no cash, but has considerable more property than the purchasing company.

BIG BREWERY IS IN FLAMES

Firemen Battle to Save the Property Around Brewing Plant.

Menominee, Mich., Dec. 7.—The Loken & Hines Brewing company's plant is in flames. Indications are that it will be totally destroyed. The loss is estimated at $200,000; insurance, $100,000. Every effort is being made to save the surrounding property.

FRAUDS CHARGED IN OHIO ELECTION

Boaten Democratic Candidates File Sensational Charges.

CONTEST NOTICES ARE SERVED

Taking of Depositions to Prove Fraud Charges Will Begin on Dec. 19.—Sweeping Violations of Election Laws Alleged.

Cincinnati, Dec. 7.—Four thousand fraudulent votes were cast in favor of the Republican candidates for the legislature in Cincinnati and Hamilton county at the last election, according to formal notices of contest which have been served on Republican candidates by the Democratic candidates. Investigation, it is said, shows:

Three thousand votes were cast by men who either directly or indirectly received money or other valuable considerations for so doing. Fifteen hundred men voted more than once.

Three thousand men marked their ballots so they might be identified. One thousand votes which were cast for the Democrats were wrongfully counted for the Republican candidates. Many election booths were located in saloons and intoxicating liquors were sold in these places while votes were being cast.

Men were permitted to congregate within 100 feet of the polls and interfere with and intimidate voters.

It is announced that the taking of depositions to prove these charges will begin Dec. 19.

ARREST CHINESE PARTY

Fifteen Persons Taken While Being Smuggled Ashore.

Customs Officers Secure Statements of Revolting Nature from Women Kidnapped by White Dealer.

San Francisco, Dec. 7.—Customs officers have secured statements from some of the Chinese women who were brought over surreptitiously on the steamer Manchuria and who were caught while being smuggled ashore. In the party of smuggled Chinese were seven men and eight women. The women were mainly opium girls, kidnapped in the straits of Hong Kong just before the sailing of the steamer. One girl was dragged and carried aboard the ship like a bundle of goods.

All fifteen were put in a storage room only 14 feet square on board the steamer, and any one, except a Chinese, would have died in a few days, as there was no light and little ventilation. Food and drink were thrust through a hole in the wall. Conditions in this veritable black hole were said to be terrible.

One man, supposed to be a white dealer in opium, had charge of these Chinese and would have made about $500 on each man and $1,000 on each girl, could he have landed them.

MAN FOUND FROZEN IN SNOW

W. P. Dett Loses Life on Way Home in Unknown Manner.

Honestdale, Pa., Dec. 7.—William P. Dett, of Deposit, N. Y., a piano agent, was found frozen to death in a snow drift about a mile west of the home of George Dillie, near Hreston Center, Wayne county. Just how he met his death is not definitely known.

No marks were found on the body and it is believed he was either thrown or fell from his cutter while driving towards home. About $2 was found in his clothing. He was 75 years old.

COLLIER HEADS AERO CLUB

Selected as President as Compromise in National Council Meeting.

New York, Dec. 7.—The meeting of delegates to the National Council of the Aero Club of America, held at the Waldorf, to elect a chairman, resulted in such a bitter contest between the two rival candidates, Cortland Field Bishop and Clifford H. Harmon, that after an eight-hour session the delegates picked Robert J. Collier as a compromise candidate lest the national council be disrupted.

FIND WEALTHY WOMAN DEAD

Mrs. Coffin Dies from Effects of a Stroke of Apoplexy.

New Rochelle, N. Y., Dec. 7.—Mrs. Evelyn Trowbridge Coffin, the wealthy widow of Charles H. Coffin, was found dead in bed by her sister, Mrs. Elizabeth McConn, with whom she lived at 129 Franklin avenue.

She was 73 years old, and had been in apparent good health. She attended the funeral of a relative and was later stricken with a stroke of apoplexy.

Famous Names and Their Owners.

Somewhere has been looking through the names in the London directory and finds that a Sebastian Bach is today a horse dealer; John Milton a grocer, a William Shakespeare a tailor, a Julius Caesar a chemist, Homer a lamp lighter, Pindar an electrician, Mars a beer seller, Venus a purveyor of sweets, Francis Bacon an architect, and Bayard a dairyman. The Paris directory offers similar surprises. It contains hundreds of who rejoice in the names of Charles Agostino and Lamar; Justinian is a baker, Racine a milkman, Lesage a spirit merchant, Daudet a maker of lemonade, Berthelot a bookbinder, Dolander a grocer, and Dumas a furniture dealer.

By DR. T. J. ALLEN, Food Specialist.

EXCESSIVE MASTICATION MAY BE INJURIOUS

Hurried eating is admitted by Prof. Metchnikoff, the distinguished authority on longevity, to be a cause of ill health and premature senility, but excessive mastication he says is also injurious, as comparative physiology teaches, producing a disease common in Fletcherites, called "Credulogy." Thorough mastication is undoubtedly beneficial, but the exclusion of waste, which excites the normal activity of the intestine and, more important, perhaps, which removes the influence upon the nervous system exerted by the passage of the dejects, with its far reaching sympathetic influence upon the nervous system—the exclusion of considerable remnant from the food is likely to prove ultimately injurious.

FIRE DESTROYS ART GALLERY

Home of R. W. Downing in Partial Ruins as Result of Blaze.

Philadelphia, Dec. 7.—Flames on the fourth floor of the house of Robert W. Downing, 1624 Locust street, president of the Colonial Trust company and former controller of the Pennsylvania Railroad company, drove him and his family out into a snow storm and resulted in serious damage to the many costly works of art which crowded the Downing home.

It also interrupted several social functions in the neighboring houses. The firemen were handicapped by the storm, but succeeded in confining the damage to the art gallery and two or three other rooms.

Don't Buy Land at $100 Per Acre in Rock County When You Can Buy Better Land at $32 to $40 Per Acre in Minnesota

There is no misrepresentation here. Every statement will be substantiated by a visit to this land. Call and talk it over. I will tell you all about the land as I have just returned from a trip of personal inspection. If you will take this trip and you do not find the land exactly as I represent it, your railroad fare both ways will be refunded.

This land is in Polk County, Minnesota, in the Red River Valley, one of the richest sections in the Northwest. The soil is virgin and is better soil than Rock county soil. All the improvements, such as rural routes, schools, roads and other buildings, are in. The houses, barns and other buildings are as good as Rock County buildings. There is an abundant rainfall, so much so that the state and county have put in a complete drainage ditch system. Some of the best Rock county farmers who have visited this land have already purchased land here. We will give you reference.

RURAL TEACHERS IN SUCCESSFUL MEETING

Many Valuable Suggestions Contributed By Speakers At Evansville Last Saturday.
(Special to this Gazette.)

Evansville, Dec. 6.—The sectional meeting of country teachers held in the Evansville high school assembly room on Saturday, December 3, was a most successful and distinctly a profit to all who were in attendance. The first number consisted of music given by the third, fourth and sixth grade children under the direction of Miss Majorie Wallace. Mr. Moore gave an interesting and helpful discussion of the topic "What the Community has a Right to Expect from Teachers". Mr. Moore has been a teacher himself and is now clerk of his board, so he is in a position to talk with some authority. Miss Nina Worthing gave a brief discussion of Mr. Moore's address and brought out some good points. Mr. Grant Howard presented some practical work in fifth grade language. As this is Mr. Howard's first year in the work he is entitled to a good deal of credit for the way in which he conducted his exercise. The exercise was discussed by Miss Jessie Kelley of Evansville, in the absence of Miss Pearl Harlow, who was unable to be present. This closed the program for the forenoon, and an intermission until 1:30 was taken. The afternoon session was opened with instrumental music by Miss Majorie Waller, and her brother, Lloyd Waller. Their playing was much enjoyed by the audience. Supt. Antidell was present at this session and he took Mr. Thorpe's place in considering the teaching of civics. The superintendent made several excellent points of value to the teachers. His remarks were discussed by Prin. Lawth and some others. Prin. J. H. Lawler of Postville, gave a well-worked out answer to the question, "Is the State Graded School an Improvement over the Regular District School? If so, in what ways?" Mr. Lawler was entertainingly humorous in part and he favored consolidation strongly as every thinker or this subject does. Supt. Antidell and Prin. Lawth discussed the subject. Miss Belle Green of Evansville, gave a very interesting reading which was well received by the teachers. Supt. Antidell, "Notes from the Field Work", were practical and usable by every teacher present. Such a talk coming directly from the Superintendent is of special value to the country teachers.

Prin. P. J. Lowth read a paper on the "Relations of District School to High School". He made it clear that the two schools should co-operate and that when the student was graduated from the district school he should be thoroughly prepared to take up high school work. He emphasized the fact that the chief aim of the public school should be, not to fit the child for college, but for a useful life. He contended that the student should be taught more that is practical and holds that courses in manual training, agriculture and domestic science should be included in the course of study of both the district and high schools. Prin. Lawth's paper was replete with sensible ideas and practical suggestions and was followed by a short talk by Mr. Antidell, Supt. Antidell is to be congratulated upon having worked out this idea of sectional meetings so successfully. The meetings are sure to prove valuable, and this Evansville meeting was surely a good example of the good which may come out of such gatherings.

Lord Loveland Discovers America

By C. N. AND A. M. WILLIAMSON

Copyright, 1910, by Doubleday, Page & Company. Copyright, 1908, by the McClure Company.

"If you'll treat me this afternoon for the price of a breakfast," Val answered, trying to speak lightly.

"Oh," she exclaimed. "I didn't ask you to pay. Why? I can't invite a friend to have a meal without any one making a fuss."

"Very well; I'll accept your invitation with thanks, provided you'll breakfast with me," said Val as gallantly as if he were addressing a duchess—or a popular chorus girl.

"My! I couldn't do that," answered Isadora. "It'd be wild if he got to know I eat a meal in the restaurant. We've a parlor upstairs," she went on, with a pretty air of importance, "and the hired girl brings our meals. But you'll be seeing me soon again," she reassured Loveland. "I shall be at the desk in the place."

Not fifteen minutes had passed when Miss Alexander, alias Solomon, reappeared, this time in all her glory, putting with her the swiftness of her wings (perhaps she had drawn them in extra tight), yet smiling in conscious beauty.

"My, but you are getting up to kill this morning!" exclaimed Bill Willing, and the fair Isadora darted a vexed glance at him, for she had wanted the "swell" to believe that this gorgeousness was her daily toilet.

"Now the show's ready to begin," she announced with a smile and a glance—all, all for Loveland. And who was so inconspicuously handsome in her richly developed young beauty that Val, despite the revolt of his fastidiousness, admired her reluctantly.

Inclined to be reserved at first, it soon occurred to Loveland that, since any part in a storm was better than no part, he had better enlist Miss Alexander's aid. In response to her bids for confidence he said that he had handed in America yesterday and had gone to the Waldorf-Astoria, to find on his arrival that his clothes had been stolen out of his luggage by an English servant. He added that his London bankers had been dilatory about instructing their New York correspondents; that when the hotel people, for some extraordinary reason known only to themselves, demanded immediate payment he had been practically penniless and had walked out in a rage, leaving everything, even his overcoat. He kept his real name and title a secret.

She, with quick feminine instinct, recognized the vast social distance between "Mr. Gordon" and Bill Willing more poignantly than did Bill himself, who had now almost forgotten it in friendly association. But even so, to have sitting at one of her father's marble topped tables, humbly eating a breakfast on her invitation, a young man who could engage a cabin on the Mauretania and a suit at the Waldorf-Astoria, seemed like a brilliant dream. She had never before seen anything quite so gallant and aristocratic looking as Bill Willing's friend and longed to attach him to herself in some way.

She offered to send a district messenger to the Waldorf-Astoria for the telegram Mr. Gordon was expecting and any letters which might have arrived. "He can bring you the lot," she arranged, "and then you can send him to your bank unless they make you show up to be identified. Anyhow, you can wait here for now. You can go on sitting where you are, or you can come and stay by me at the desk if the tables fill up with folks for breakfast."

Loveland's face slowly reddened and his eyes grew troubled.

"You needn't mind about the money for the messenger," she said quickly. "You can pay me back afterward, if you're so awful poor."

"Why, of course I'd pay you back," Val answered her. "But—er—the fact is"—he hesitated, trying to find a way out of the tangled web "Mr. Gordon" had woven—"the fact is, I—er—the wonder is if he could bear to go to the hotel and thus escape the difficulty about the name, but pictured himself arriving in evening dress by broad daylight and felt his gorge rise at the degradation—"the fact is anything coming for me at the Waldorf will have on it the name of Loveland. The Marquis of Loveland" will be the address on my letters."

"My goodness, you did fly high!" exclaimed Isadora, dimpling. "I guess it's no wonder they gave you a whole suit" (she pronounced it "suit") "of rooms. But that's all right. You put on a card that you want the messenger boy should do, and you needn't be afraid to trust him. These little fellows are safe, no banks."

Isadora saw that Bill had the food he liked for breakfast—a steaming pile of buckwheat cakes trimmed round the edges with crisp brown lace and cooling strap at every pore. Also she sent him a copy of the New York Light without having even glanced at the front page, although a "gentleman friend" who had paid her a great deal of attention last summer was at the beginning of his trial for a really exciting murder.

When the messenger came back Mr. Gordon's face grew, eyes more blank until it hardened into an expression of hopelessness. She was sure that the boy had brought neither letter nor telegram and that something had gone very wrong indeed with her mysterious guest's calculations.

"Here, take this and pay the messenger," she whispered. "I guess your friend's had a disappointment."

Bill obeyed, but did not at once come back. When the youth had been paid and had shot away up the street as if through a pneumatic tube Bill looked at her in consultation with the pale young man at the table.

"Something's up," Isadora said to herself in an agony of curiosity. But what the "something" was she could not find out till breakfast was over and the room clear of customers.

"The cable I expected hasn't arrived," explained P. Gordon. "It's all right, of course, when I come to think of it, and I'm not really worried, for I haven't paid enough attention to the difference of time between London and New York. I must send again later in the day, when there will be letters, too, perhaps, and people's visiting cards. Meanwhile—"

"Meanwhile stay where you are and make yourself at home," cut in Isadora hospitably. Nevertheless she was anxious when the thought of her father and the inevitable moment of his coming downstairs, heavily footed with illness and "cross as a bear with a sore head." Pa would want to have the beautiful young man in evening clothes satisfactorily explained, and it was borne in upon the girl that he would be rather difficult to explain. Nonpaying people and things were always difficult to explain to Alexander, especially when he was under the weather. But—there was one way out of the scrape, and Isadora snatched at it suddenly with a leap of the heart. All might be well should she prevail upon Mr. Gordon to accept another loan from her—if he liked to call it a loan!

She had been saving up her allowance to buy a new ball dress and had already set her heart on the thing she would have. But she would deplete the sum by a third for Mr. Gordon's sake if he would take the money.

"Thank you, but Mr. Willing has given me a piece of good advice," said Val. "If it hadn't been for him I shouldn't have thought of it perhaps. He suggests my paying a few things I have on me."

"Now was Isadora's time to speak, and she offered her alternative suggestion, but with some stammering and confusion. As soon as he gathered the drift of her faltering words he broke in, thanking her sincerely, saying that she was most awfully kind, but he couldn't trespass any further upon her goodness. According to Willing, there was a pawnshop just round the corner. They two would go there immediately, and then, with money to pay his debt to her, as well as his own unforeseen delays, he would be glad to come back for a time.

Luckily for Loveland's fortune, however, the ordeal—or the out of doors part of it—was brief. He was whisked round the corner and hurried, more fully into a dingy den which Bill Willing seemed to regard as a kind of "home from home," or, at the least, a cold storage warehouse.

Loveland dropped his shirt of studs, took the gold links out of his cuffs and produced his watch, asking almost humbly how much would be allowed for the lot.

The watch was of gun metal; the sleeve links, the simplest he had owned, were devoid of precious stones, and the pawnbroker, having examined the offered objects with an air of disparegament, mentioned the sum of $9. When urged to make a higher bid he remarked that he was "no Santa Claus" and at last showed himself so indifferent that Loveland was glad to exchange his prized belongings for $1 less than the sum at first refused.

"I expect the old Curmudge will be on for his scene by the time we get back," said Bill as they returned to Alexander the Great's after an absence of nearly an hour, during which time Loveland had provided his shirt front with cheap celluloid studs.

But Curmudge, alias Mr. Solomon, alias Alexander, was still absent. His understudy, Izzy of the almond eyes, continued to reign alone over a kingdom of marble topped tables and empty red chairs awaiting their next occupants, but sixty minutes had changed her oddly. She looked up with a nervous start when Loveland came in with Bill and hid in her lap the newspaper which had been lying before her on the desk.

Home Course In Health Culture

XIII.—Diet Hints For the Home

By EUGENE L. FISK, M. D.
Copyright, 1910, by American Press Association.

That all softening, overpowering heat. The touch of the soul—the dinner bell.

Too often the "toxin" of the soul" invites us to the "toxin" of the stomach. The pure food laws protect us in a great measure from poisonous foods, but they do not prevent us from manufacturing "toxins" or poisons in our own systems by our habits of eating.

It will be many long years before the last word has been said on dietetics, the vegetarians, naturals, fruitarians, long chewsers and short chewsers to the contrary notwithstanding. Nevertheless a few general principles to which the everyday man may hold fast are pretty well established.

In trying to feed rationally it is well, as in other lines of effort, to have some ideal or standard, and so before considering the relative value of foods it is necessary to have a definite idea of what really constitutes a food. A food may be defined as a substance that—

First.—Is digestible and nonpoisonous.

Second.—Furnishes energy or building material to the body.

Food is divided chemically into two great classes, nitrogenous and non-nitrogenous.

The most important nitrogenous elements are known as proteins, of which the lean of meat and white of egg are examples. Some vegetables and grains also contain proteins, especially peas, beans, wheat, rice, corn, etc.

The non-nitrogenous elements are divided into fats, carbohydrates (sugars and starches) and salts.

In other words, we must find in our food the same elements that enter into the composition of the body.

The folly of trying to live on any one particular kind of food will be apparent to any one who familiarizes himself with the constitution of the body and its needs. The proteins are required for building material and energy, the carbohydrates and fats for storage and energy and the salts and mineral elements for building purposes and to assist in the chemical processes and exchanges going on in the body.

What is Digestion?

Digestion is the process of transforming food elements into substances that can be absorbed into the blood through the walls of the digestive tract. If the digestive functions are paralyzed food taken into the stomach acts simply as a foreign body and causes irritation and finally, by its decomposition, poisoning.

The digestive processes are carried on by substances whose exact form and constitution are unknown, termed enzymes, or ferments.

But digestion does not begin in the stomach. The saliva contains a very important enzyme, ptyalin, which converts starch into malt sugar. The importance of thoroughly chewing all starch foods, such as cereals, vegetables, bread, pastry, potatoes, etc., will at once be apparent.

"Counting your chews," however, is not advised. The act of chewing should be natural and subconscious. If the attention is directed too closely to the mechanical act of chewing or, in fact, if the mind dwells too intently on the subject of digestion the normal functions are retarded. Count your chews some time and note if your jaws do not ache by the time you reach the twentieth. Count your steps in walking and note whether your limbs do not quickly tire.

If the internal activities of our bodies could be seen in their entirety, even for a few brief moments, it is probable that an unutterable weariness would oppress and stifle us.

Prolonged chewing of meat does not appear to be required. The favorable results from experimenting along this line are probably due to the fact that less meat was taken. The saliva does not digest meat. On the contrary, by prolonged chewing meat is thoroughly saturated with the alkaline secretion of the mouth, which would appear to render it less digestible in the stomach, where digestion can only operate in an acid medium. A good plan to follow is to chew cereals, vegetables, bread, potatoes, pastry and all starchy foods until they disappear down the gullet. This requires no mental effort, and the best possible results will follow. Food eaten in this fashion is more pleasing to the palate, and that itself is stimulating to all the digestive functions.

Stomach Digestion.

The stomach enzyme is "pepsin," which converts proteins into soluble substances called peptones. The digestion of starchy foods is checked in the stomach by the hydrochloric acid of the gastric juice, but the starch digestion is resumed in the small intestine.

Intestinal Digestion.

Here it is acted upon by several enzymes, which complete starch digestion and also convert ordinary cane sugar into grape sugar.

Protein digestion also proceeds in the intestines, and fats are digested and emulsified so that they can be absorbed.

As previously stated, all these food elements are required either for energy, building material, storage or to carry on the chemical and physical exchanges in the tissues. During these processes the food elements are broken up and many of them literally burned or oxidized, just as a candle burns, with the formation of carbon dioxide and water.

A great deal of scientific experiment is being conducted to accurately determine the most satisfactory dietary for man. The subject is too complex to be minutely discussed in this paper, and such discussion would only confuse without benefitting the average man.

We may trust science to solve this problem as it has solved others and in the meantime enjoy our meals without worrying about them so long as we avoid some of the more prominent dietetic errors.

Diet Hints.

First as to meat consumption: Meat is not a poison. There is no need to shudder every time you indulge in a beefsteak. On the other hand, it is known to contain certain substances, extracts which if taken in excess may throw an extra burden on the kidneys and which seem to have some influence in causing a gouty condition.

Meat is palatable and easy to prepare; consequently there is a tendency to overindulge in it. There is a well grounded belief among medical men that meat once a day is sufficient, especially during middle life and old age. Where gout, rheumatism or kidney trouble exists meat should be sparingly taken. In such conditions light meats are less harmful and boiled meats better than roasted or broiled. Fried meat is a dietetic atrocity, even for the strongest stomach.

Value of Vegetable Diet.

Many vegetables are rich in proteins and from a chemical standpoint quite as nutritious as meat. But here is where the rub comes in—a food must be digestible or its protein contents are valueless. "Boston baked beans" are rich in proteins, but a steady diet of that delectable duffery would be a severe test for some stomachs.

Vegetables as a class contain a great deal of cellulose and fiber which cannot be digested. This serves a useful purpose, as it stimulates the action of the intestines. By increasing the proportion of vegetables in the diet an individual age approaches and the vital activities begin to slow down the provided elements in the food are reduced and there is less burden laid upon kidneys and arteries.

Fats and sugar are energy producers and very valuable foods for this purpose. Taken in excess, however, they interfere with digestion and may prove especially harmful in obesity, gout, rheumatism and kidney trouble.

Sugar is likely to cause acid dyspepsia if taken too freely and in concentrated form.

But retards the secretion of gastric juice. Greasy fried foods are for this reason objectionable.

Alcohol produces energy, but at a high cost. It may be excluded from consideration as a food, since it is injurious to the body cells.

The Measure of Food Energy.

It seems hardly proper to close this article without a reference to the famous "calorie." This is the amount of heat required to raise one liter of water 1 degree centigrade. It is the unit of food energy and is used in stating the amount of heat any particular food will give when burned.

According to authorities who are not extremists, a man weighing 155 pounds, moderately active, requires about 2800 calories. This would be represented by the following:

Bread, one pound; meat, four ounces; eggs, four ounces (two small ones); cheese, two ounces; potatoes, one pound; butter or fat, two ounces; milk, one-quarter pint; sugar, one-half ounce; tea, coffee.

Summary.

Good teeth, natural or artificial, are more necessary than knives and forks. Eat slowly, chew starchy foods thoroughly, eat meat once a day, water in moderation at meals, freely between meals, less meat and sweets and more vegetables at middle life. Do not worry about your food; do not eat when very tired; do not exercise just after eating. A mixed diet is best unless disease calls for special diet; avoid strange, weird diet fads; more muscular work calls for more food, especially fats and sugars; less muscular work, less food; moderate eating for brain work; neither starvation nor gluttony is in accord with science and common sense.

Black Eyes at Eton.

In proposing "The Imperial Forces" at the annual venison dinner at Windsor, Mr. R. A. Hasenauer, an old Etonian, said they wanted every boy in England to be able to defend himself and practice the noble art of self-defense. He had a black eye in his day, and he did not see half enough black eyes at Eton.—London Telegraph.

Beat Cough Medicine for Children.

The season for coughs and colds is now at hand and too much care cannot be used to protect the children. A child is much more likely to contract diphtheria or scarlet fever when he has a cold. The quicker you cure his cold the less the risk. Meritol Cough Remedy is the sole reliance of many mothers, and few of those who have tried it are willing to use any other. Mrs. J. D. Mulvaney of Decatur, Ga., says: "I have never used anything other than Meritol Cough Remedy for my children and it has always given good satisfaction." This remedy contains no opium or other narcotic and may be given as confidently to a child as to an adult. For sale by the Reliable Drug Co., Druggists. Members American Drug & Press Association.

Janesville Has to Bow to the Inevitable—Scores of Citizens Prove It.

After reading the public statement of this representative citizen of Janesville given below, you must come to this conclusion: A remedy which cured years ago, which has kept the kidneys in good health since, can be relied upon to perform the same work in other cases. Read this.

Mrs. William Mohr, 210 N. Academy St., Janesville, Wis., says: "About two years ago I had an attack of kidney trouble and at that time I got a supply of Doan's Kidney Pills at the People's Drug Co. The use of only two boxes cured me. Other members of my family have taken Doan's Kidney Pills with satisfactory results, and I therefore know this remedy to be a reliable one." (Statement given in August, 1908.)

The Benefit Lasted.

Mrs. Mohr was interviewed on September 23, 1910, and she said: "I gladly confirm my former endorsement of Doan's Kidney Pills. They permanently rid me of kidney complaint and during the past two years, I have had no further need of a kidney medicine."

THE THEATER

It might be well to know that all these gowns whose aggregate sum though a dressmaker's convention is vast wholesale in the vicinity of not being held in this city, there is four thousand nine hundred dollars.

a place where the female contingent or from two hundred and fifty to three hundred dollars apiece. These gowns are a work of art, and the feature of this exhibit is six worth any woman's time to feast her eyes upon. They can be seen here on Thursday, Dec. 15, at the Myers Theatre, when "A Winning Miss" the musical comedy comes to your city. The gowns will be worn by sixteen of the prettiest show girls on road, called "The Christy Girls," and justly named because of their fascinating beauty and divine forms. "A Winning Miss" is not of the ordinary type of musical show, but is based on the topical divorce question and involves some of the most prominent people of the present time. The company is sixty in number, and is headed by that irrepressible comedian Mr. Max Bloom, of "Mayor of Tokio" and "Sunny Side of Broadway," fame. The music is of that dreamy whistling type and the kind that appeals. Owing to the fact that seats are now on sale and selling fast, it might be well to secure your reservation well in advance.

"The Squaw Man."

In the "Squaw Man," which comes to Myers Theatre, Thursday, Dec. 8, matinee and evening, one finds a play of the West replete with types and characters of that region, and with a spice of novelty that is for too infrequent upon the stage. Strange as enough for that is true, a drama that touches on the teeming strangeness of the Wyoming territory, there is little of the swashbuckling element in the play. While there is a bad man and a sheriff, and several cow punchers, one misses the rip-roaring terrifying clash of personalities that is expected in a Western play. In fact there is no hint of course rutilantism so often to be found in plays of this description, and while the emotions are stirred by many moving climaxes, these are safely shut-tracked in an artistic manner by the dramatist until they satisfy the sense without shocking the nerves.

Edwin Milton Royle, who wrote the play, has admittedly done the best work of his career in "The Squaw Man," which by the way was evolved from a short one-act piece. Mr. Royle wrote the "Lamb's Gambol" in New York quite four years ago. He has built up a drama that is of the heroic mould, and which moves steadily forward with an inexorable purpose until the plot has been filled out in a satisfactory manner down to the last detail. There is no plot that is left uncovered, but just a good, whole-souled, clean and satisfying picture of men and things that moves the auditor breathlessly and carries him along. It is a play that deals with men as they are and points to the dormant something that lies at the bottom of every man's soul when there is a woman somewhere in his life. While the first act is laid in England, the last three are placed happily in Wyoming, in the heart of the cattle country as it was twenty years ago, and the character of the British army officer, who for love of his brother's wife, deliberately saddles himself with a crime of which he is innocent and buries himself in the West, is splendidly drawn and ably handled.

"WANDERLUST."

The desire to travel is strong in the human breast. Everybody seems to be possessed to a greater or lesser extent, of what the Germans call "Wanderlust." The land we have not yet visited is just the one that we long to see most. But as so few of us can ever spare the time or money to go there, it is easy to understand the popularity and vogue of Lyman H. Howe's Travel Festival which comes to the Myers theatre, Tuesday, December 27, matinee and evening. It is practically the only attraction of its kind with sufficient compelling power to make you feel you are traveling to just where you want to go. It is because Mr. Howe knows how to gratify the universal craving to travel and satisfies it in a very alluring way, that two million people travel via his route each season. It is a royal route, too. Particularly so because the audience may rub elbows with nearly all the mighty ones of earth—the kings and princes of Europe, potentates and dignitaries from everywhere including Col. Roosevelt while attending the late King Edward's funeral. Every episode and incident of the historic pageant in London as well as the impressive scenes at Windsor, is shown with such perfect fidelity that the Philadelphia Ledger said of it—"It is likely there will be no greater tribute to the splendid king than this presented so vividly to the American people."

Then, too, there will be scenes of the royalty of Japan—as well as its peasantry—during a big jubilee, a ride on the Elmer Tower, that Switzerland in winter, during artillery maneuvers in Italy, the flocks of Norway life on a training ship, building the Grand Trunk Pacific railroad, with many others of the amusing kind.

SALE OF STAMPS IS PROGRESSING

People Of Janesville Are Buying Many Of The W. A. T. A. Stickers For Xmas Packages and Letters. The sale of the Christmas stamps of the Wisconsin Anti-Tuberculosis Association has been commenced in this city and is progressing finely. The people are much interested in the work and while sales have just begun and are not as large as they will be as the Christmas season draws nearer, there is every indication that the record made by Janesville last year in the purchase of the stickers will be exceeded. Miss Louise Merrill has charge of the stamp sales in the city.

Among the numerous competitions arranged by the Wisconsin Anti-Tuberculosis Association to stimulate the sale of Christmas seals and to materially assist the battle against consumption in all localities, the one limited to cities of 5,000 to 55,000 population, and bringing as a reward these services of an expert visiting nurse, is arousing exceptional interest.

The twelve cities in this class making the highest per capita sale will participate in the reward. An expert nurse has been engaged for one year, and she will spend one month in each of the twelve winning cities. The city making the highest per capita sale of the twelve winners will receive the benefit of the nurse's visit in precedence over the others, and the remaining cities will be visited in the order of their sale.

A number of cities engaged in this competition have already enjoyed the privilege of a visiting nurse's services, but the great majority have yet to receive the advantages of such service. The visiting nurse is just what the name indicates, a nurse who visits the sick and the poor in their homes and instructs them in their problems with a view to helping them and providing relief. It is a fact that many cities are misdirecting their relief work because no attempt has been made to study conditions and apply such relief to best advantage. Relief money has thus been virtually wasted in many cases. In solving the local tuberculosis problem, the visiting nurse is a most important factor.

STORIES OF CAMP AND WAR

CAPTURE SMALL GRIST MILL

Detachment of Missouri Cavalry
Make Raid and Bag Lot of Rebels and Horses.

Our three years' service expired Aug. 9, 1864, and on the 17th Lt. Col. Groves, in command of 14 men of Co. A and 12 of Co. B, 7th Mo. Cav., left Pine Bluffs, Ark., at daylight on a secret march of 32 miles south to a grist mill, which Gen. Clayton was anxious to know whether the rebels were operating. We were guided by Columbus Marr, who lived in the neighborhood of the mill. He was loyal and brave.

About noon we stopped back of a field, where the guide's mother, a widow, lived, and about three miles from the mill. As soon as our horses were rested we started for the mill through the timber. We had not gone far until we could hear the throbbing of the engine, writes W. H. Craven, sergeant Co. A, 7th Mo. Cav., of Milton, Iowa, in National Tribune. We went within 80 rods of the mill, when the lieutenant concealed the command in a thicket and gave orders to remain quiet until his return. He and the guide left.

In about an hour they returned, having gone inside the rebel camp to a house which was not more than 200 yards from the mill, occupied by a Union family. As our guide was personally acquainted with the family and knew he could trust them, he had one of the girls go to the mill under the guise of having some milking done, and get all the information she could in regard to the location of their camp and the number of soldiers there, which she did.

The lieutenant called us around him and said: "Gen. Clayton sent me to find out whether or not the rebels were running the mill, which they are. There are 100 men running and guarding it; there are 70 now at the mill and 30 on a scout between here and Pine Bluffs, and have started since noon. Two miles south of the mill is their main camp, occupied by 4,500 infantry and cavalry, with two sections of artillery. I have fulfilled my mission. It is up to you if we go any farther."

A tall, lank fellow by the name of Nichols straightened himself up, and said: "Lieutenant, we don't want to use ourselves up like we did today without getting one shot." "All right," said the lieutenant, "mount your horses."

We were now about 80 rods north-east of the mill, and their camp was 200 southwest. We made a circuit until we were almost west of their camp and about 200 yards from it, when we halted, and the lieutenant told Sergt. Smith of Co. B, to take 12 men of his company and charge the camp, and he would take the 14 from Co. A and charge the mill, and gave me orders to take those left of Co. A and not come into the mill yard until all of the men were in.

The rebels were surprised, and did not discover our presence until Sergt.

Kicked Up the Straw and Applied the Torch.

Smith with his squad rode into their camp and demanded their surrender and opened fire on them. Those that did not surrender took to the woods and left their horses, and those running the mill rushed out to see what the commotion was, only to find the mill yard in possession of Co. A.

It was then about 5 o'clock in the evening, and a heavy rain storm was brewing, which I have always thought was our salvation. The lieutenant called us together, and gave us orders to get fire to their camp, get all the horses ready, detail a guard for the prisoners and be ready to march in the quickest time possible.

I gathered up a firebrand, out of their campfire, and started in the first tent in the line, and kicked up the straw and applied the torch.

In a few moments we were on the march, and by this time the rain was falling in torrents. The lieutenant, instead of starting towards the Bluffs, started on the road to the main rebel camp, but only followed it until we were out of sight of the houses that surrounded the mill, and then took to the woods again.

We got into Pine Bluffs the next morning about 11 o'clock.

JESSE BISE NOW IN PENNSYLVANIA

Chief Appleby Gets An Answer to a Series of Letters Directed to Various Points.

Through a series of letters which he mailed to various points, Chief Appleby has succeeded in locating Jesse Bise, former clerk in W. J. Bates' grocery store who is wanted for taking and diverting to his own use a check for $13.19 drawn in favor of his employer by P. A. Peterson. Bise had been in the habit of running over to the Nichols Co. store to get bills changed and the check was converted into money of small denominations without question when he presented it after banking hours on Saturday, Nov. 26.

Bise, replying to Chief Appleby's letter advising him to promptly refund the money unless he wished to be arrested and brought back here, writes from West Middletown, Washington county, Pennsylvania, under date of Dec. 5, as follows:

"I will send the money to you for that amount inside a week or two. The reason it was the way it happened was because my mother was dead and I was bound to come, and no way out of it. I hope you will forgive me this time, not for my sake but for hers only, because I thought a whole lot of her. I will send it positively all to you. Send the rest of my mail to the above address because I am here at my aunt's. Thanking you very much for your kindness.
Yours,
JESSE BISE.

Answer soon." Mr. Bates has informed Chief Appleby that since Bise took his sudden departure it has come to light in several instances that money given to the youth to purchase certain wares at other grocery stores was not paid. He estimates these "overights" at about $20. The Nichols Co. management thinks that in view of the fact that Mr. Bates, through his employees, had made a practice of asking for the accommodation of change, he should stand good for this loss, particularly as the check, itself, says for the sum of $13.19, which was perfectly good. Mr. Bates thinks, otherwise, according to some acquaintances of Bise, his mother died about fifteen years ago.

PLAN TO GIVE POOR PEOPLE MERRY XMAS

Salvation Army Will Give Dinners To Sixty Families and City Missionary Kinball Will Dispense Supplies.

Sixty families of the poor people will be fed by the Salvation Army at Christmas time this year, according to the plans now being made by Captain H. A. Fleming, officer in charge of the local corps. The spread given the needy ones, will, as planned, be more elaborate than ever before and will bring the true spirit of the holiday into many homes. An endeavor will be made to secure enough supplies to furnish each family with two baskets filled with good things and to this end, Captain Fleming solicits donations of food or cash. Twenty-four articles will be included in the two baskets given each family. This will probably be the last Christmas dinner of which the captain will have charge in this city. The articles desired are: Sixty chickens, about four pounds each; sixty pounds of preserves; sixty quarts of jelly; sixty cabbages; sixty quarts of navy beans; thirty dozen each of bananas and oranges; thirty pecks of apples; sixty quarts of onions; sixty bars of toilet soap; sixty 25-lb. sacks of flour; and sixty packages of crackers. Money orders and checks will be accepted when made out to the order of the Salvation Army and should be sent to Captain Fleming at 101 North Main street.

An appeal for supplies is also made by Mary Kinball, city missionary, for use in her work at the mission. Her request is general for supplies of all kinds. Clothing is required as the demand is greater than the stock on hand and bedding is another necessity desired. On account of poor health Mrs. Kinball will be unable to serve the usual Christmas dinner to the poor at the mission, but she will accept and see to the distribution of groceries, meat and other food supplies for the needy. Cash donations will also be accepted to provide Christmas dinners for the poor.

DR. WOODS' AUTO RAN AWAY TODAY

A Tree at the Foot of the Court House Park Checked its Mad Career—One Wheel Cripped.

"Some day your machine will run away if you leave the engine running like that," said Dr. Woods to Dr. Woods at the hospital at 8:30 this morning. At nine o'clock the prophecy was verified. The machine had been left in front of the residence on Court street and all of a sudden started down hill with nobody at the steering wheel. Near the foot of the incline the machine climbed over the curb and ran into a good sized shade tree in the court house park. The tree refused to budge. When rescued and brought back to its moorings one rear wheel of the runaway wobbled in a very serious fashion.

The Bahamas. The Bahamas have no descendants now of the Indians whom Columbus found there. They were carried away by the Spaniards to work in mines and pearl fisheries elsewhere, when they were not ruthlessly exterminated. Of the white population many are the descendants of the Loyalists of Georgia and South Carolina who fled from the United States because in dependent. The blacks' speech presents an especially curious feature: they exchange their vs and vs, exactly as the Londoner did when Mr. Weller insisted upon spelling his name with a "We."

Horrible Bequest to Father. What is probably the strangest and, at the same time, the most horrible bequest ever made, is to be found in the will of Lieutenant de Pap, formerly an officer in a smart regiment of Austrian hussars, who was executed by strangling some years ago for the murder of his brother. Previous to his execution the murderer requested that he might be photographed while hanging on the gallows, and a copy of the ghastly picture sent to his father.

VAN HISE WAS NOT LAFOLLETTE'S AID

Denies That His Recent Dinner With Col. Roosevelt in New York Had Political Significance.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)
Madison, Wis., Dec. 7.—President Charles R. Van Hise of the University of Wisconsin, when interviewed today in regard to the statements made in one of the Chicago papers yesterday morning by its Washington correspondent, concerning his luncheon with Col. Roosevelt in New York some time ago, said that his visit in New York City was made as trustee of the Carnegie Foundation for the Advancement of Teaching; that he was no way the messenger of Senator La Follette; and that so far as he was aware Senator La Follette did not know of his visit to New York City.

President Van Hise stated that he and President H. S. Pritchard of the Carnegie Foundation were invited by Col. Roosevelt to meet some of the editors of the Outlook. Much of the discussion, President Van Hise added, was in reference to the Outlook and its work; in fact, the luncheon seemed to be one of a series in which the editors meet to discuss the policy to be pursued by the magazine.

AGED ROCKTON LADY DIES AFTER LONG RESIDENCE ON THE SAME FARM

(BY UNITED PRESS.)
Beloit, Dec. 7.—Mrs. F. W. Pockard, aged 87, a resident of Rockton, near here, 72 years, died this morning in the house where she was married 57 years ago. She is survived by her husband, aged 92.

BOB MOHA AFTER WELTER-WEIGHT CHAMPIONSHIP.

Milwaukee, Wis.—Whether or not Bob Moha has a good right to make a claim for the welterweight championship, will be demonstrated in this city when he clashes with Jimmy Gardner in the near future. Gardner claims the title; so does Mike "Twin" Sullivan, Jimmy Clabbe and Bob Moha. However, Clabbe is out of the running because Moha, who is known as "Handsome Bob," gave him a trimming just before Jimmy went to Australia with Billy Pank and Johnny Thompson. Tommy Loughrey, once a star lightweight, also wanted a look-in for the title but Moha handed a facing to the Pennsylvania boy less than two weeks ago.

The two fighters who should be given the greatest consideration in an effort to annex the title, are Jimmy Gardner of Lowell and Mike Sullivan. Should Moha defeat Gardner, there will be only one man to block his path to the championship. That man is Sullivan. Arrangements are now being made to have Sullivan come here and fight Moha the middle of December, providing Moha beats Gardner.

Moha has been fighting several years, but for a long time was the "black sheep" in the boxing world. Milwaukee conducted shows about every two weeks for many years past, but it was always hard hard for Bob to get a match. But this year it is different and match-makers throughout the country are seeking his services. Of course his victory over Jimmy Clabbe brought him prominently before the boxing public. After his fight with Clabbe, "Handsome Bob" walloped the daylight out of Edward Lang, the Canadian champion in one round in Buffalo. Last week he gave Tommy Loughrey of Manayunk, Pa., the worst beating the latter ever received.

Victories over Jimmy Gardner and Mike "Twin" Sullivan, will mean the welterweight championship for Bob.

Moha, known also as "Handsome Bob" and "Wild Bob."

Mr. Jacob L. Davis, Galeus, Stone county, Mo., writes: "I have been in bad health for thirty-seven years, and after taking twelve bottles of your Peru-na I am cured." Mr. C. N. Constant confinement in my store began to tell on my health, and I felt that I was gradually breaking down. I tried several remedies, but obtained no permanent relief until I took Peru-na. I felt better immediately, and five bottles restored me to complete health."

A SINCERE RECOMMENDATION.

Mr. D. C. Prosser, Bravo, Allegan Co., Mich., writes: "Two years ago I was badly afflicted with catarrh of the stomach. I had had a run of typhoid fever, was very depleted, I could find nothing I could eat without causing distress and sour stomach. Finally I came to the conclusion that I had catarrh of the stomach and seeing Peru-na advertised, began to take it. It helped me soon, and after taking three or four bottles I was entirely cured of stomach trouble, and can now eat anything."

The Evening Chit-Chat

By RUTH CAMERON.

THERE is a little new mother across the street from us, who, because she seems to all of us such a young and helpless mite to have charge of another even younger and more helpless mite, is the constant recipient of wise advice and suggestions and "how-to-did-it" from all the mothers in the neighborhood.

Most of this she receives willingly—no, avidly.

But the other day she rebelled.

This is how it happened.

The lady who is born with a mantle for regulating everyone's affairs came in to see the baby.

She admired him enthusiastically enough to suit even the little mother, and then she started to regulate. Had she done it in the direct frank way of the other mothers there would have been no trouble at all, but instead she went about it this way.

Addressing the baby: "So he was a beautiful, beautiful little baby, but why didn't he tell his mother that she had his little garters too tight so they drew his little legs right up?"

"Oh, did he yawn, was he real sleepy? Bless his little heart. He must tell his mother that he needs a longer nap in the morning than she gives him."

When she took her departure after half an hour's conversation thickly jeweled with modest pearls of insinuated wisdom like the above, the little mother came back from seeing her to the door with tightly shut lips and a flame of resentment on her cheeks.

"Tell the lady the next time she comes here that your mother wouldn't do a thing she said, just because she said it all in such a silly, silly way, she admonished the baby solemnly, and then in answer to my laugh, 'Oh yes, I suppose I will, because she knows such a lot; but don't you hate hints?'"

To which question, though I should call the suggestions of the Lady-who-had-a-mantle-for-regulating-others' affairs rather too broad for hints, I was able to give a warm affirmative.

Don't YOU?

Do you know anything more exasperating, for instance, than to have someone with whom you have been talking ten minutes on the telephone begin to hint that she is going out that evening instead of telling you frankly the moment you called up that she had an engagement and would rather you called up the next night, which you would have been entirely willing to do?

To unnecessary frankness in the speaking of disagreeable things I am a most militant foe.

But, to frankness and directness in the matter of necessary facts, as opposed to hints, I am as vigorous a friend.

Commend me for a friend to that kind of person who never says a disagreeable or critical thing unless it will do some good, and when he thinks it will, says it frankly and plainly instead of hinting.

The KITCHEN CABINET

THE KITCHEN CABINET is a spot of earth so precious, so dear, so sweet, so full of life, so full of love, so full of hope, so full of faith, so full of joy, so full of peace, so full of happiness, so full of everything that makes life worth living, that it is a shame to let it go to waste.

Art thou a man? a patriot? look around. Oh, thou shalt find how many thy footsteps tread.

That land, thy country, and that spot thy home.

French Dishes.

So deeply rooted and grounded are we in the belief that French cookery is the sine qua non of that art that the impression lingers after the fact has been demonstrated that though France knows much, she does not know all.

Mark Twain, who appreciated a good dinner and had also the courage of his convictions, wrote in his pleasing way, of the ordinary dinner, served as it is in Europe by the French cook:

"The European dinner is better than the European breakfast, but it has inferiorities; it does not satisfy." We must admit, however, that the French have distanced us in matters of economy.

They look with dismay upon the huge roasts and steaks which are found on many American tables.

Onion Soup With Eggs and Cream.

This is a delicious soup. Take six white onions, cut fine, and fried a light brown in a tablespoonful of butter. Then add a quart of boiling water and one pint of milk, season with a teaspoonful of salt and a dash of pepper, a pinch of mace and a teaspoonful of sugar. Cook slowly for an hour and strain; then beat four eggs to a foam, add a cupful of cream, and one tablespoonful of cornstarch mixed with a little cold water; cook for a few minutes to remove the raw taste of the cornstarch, then add the eggs, as the soup must not be boiled after the eggs are added, as that will curdle the soup.

Cream Fritters.

Take one quart of milk, one cup of sugar, one tablespoonful of butter, a half teaspoonful of salt, a cup of blanched and chopped almonds, flavor with orange. Boil the milk, add a tablespoonful of cornstarch mixed with a little cold milk. Add the sugar, butter and salt and cook ten minutes. Then add six well-beaten eggs, spread an inch thick in a buttered pan and cook. When firm cut in strips an inch wide and three inches long; roll carefully in fine crumbs; dip in beaten egg and fry in deep fat. Drain on paper and serve hot.

By-Product of Match Factory.

One match factory on the Pacific coast, covers 240 acres and operates over 30 miles of railroad, over which is carried to it daily 200,000 feet of sugar pine and yellow pine logs for the match-making. Inferior lumber will not do. It must be straight grained and free from knots and carefully treated in addition. The by-product goes into larger things. This factory turns out as by-product a thousand doors and 800 window sashes daily.

Terrible Suffering

Eczema All Over Baby's Body.

"When my baby was four months old his face broke out with eczema, and at sixteen months of age, his face, hands and arms were in a dreadful state. The eczema spread all over his body. We had to put a mask or cloth over his face and tie up his hands. Finally we gave him Hood's Sarsaparilla and in a few months he was entirely cured. Today he is a healthy boy." Mrs. Inez Lewis, Burlington, Mass.

Hood's Sarsaparilla cures blood diseases and builds up the system.

ORDERED FIRE AUTO; WILL ARRIVE TODAY

Purchasing Committee of Council Took Definite Action and Prompt Delivery Will Be Made.

At a meeting held at the West Side fire station late yesterday afternoon the purchasing committee of the common council definitely decided to buy a truck motor car for the chief of the fire department. William Frielpp of the firm of Frielpp Brothers, went to Madison this morning to get the machine and it will probably be brought here and delivered sometime this afternoon or evening.

The motor car is said to be worth $1,750. It is without the chemical attachment and Janesville will get it for $1,150. The bargain was offered because the company, being very eager to profit by the advertising which the placing of a special machine of this character in Janesville would secure for it, was unable to manufacture the specially designed vehicle for $1,200 and deliver it within a period of time satisfactory to all concerned.

The motor car is a model 10 and the latest of that type. Its sponsors claim that it will develop under a brake test at the engine fly-wheel 48.1 horse power and will show 40.1 horse power on the wheels. It is four cylinder machine, geared to 30 miles an hour, the standard for motor driven fire apparatus. Equipment includes a double seat and incandescent lights. There will be plenty of room for the chemical tank and hose.

METHODIST BROTHERHOOD HELD INTERESTING MEETING

Monthly Banquet Served Last Evening in the Church Parlor.

The Methodist Brotherhood held their monthly banquet in the church parlors last evening and after a bounteous repast, served by the ladies, the time was devoted to a discussion on the "High Cost of Living." The superabundance of gold, as a contributing cause, was elucidated by Prof. D. D. Manrow, and Prof. Baill treated the question of "Over-protection." W. W. Wool gave an interesting paper on "Neglect of Farming," while Dr. Stevens discussed "Extravagance and Waste," and H. F. Bliss made a few remarks on "Combinations or Trusts."

The program was enlivened by violin solos from Miss Florence Crissey, and vocal solos by Wilbur Austin. About sixty men were present and the brotherhood, which is a permanent organization, has a promising outlook.

God Humor and Cheerfulness from Right Food and Drink.

Anything that interferes with good health is apt to keep cheerfulness and good humor in the background. A Washington lady found that letting coffee alone made things bright for her. She writes:

"Four years ago I was practically given up by my doctor and was not expected to live long. My nervous system was in bad condition."

"But I was young and did not want to die so I began to look about for the cause of my chronic trouble. I used to have nervous spells which would exhaust me and after each spell, it up in a chair."

"I became convinced my trouble was caused by coffee. I decided to stop it and bought some Postum."

"The first cup, which I made according to directions, had a soothing effect on my nerves and I liked the taste. For a time I nearly lived would take days before I could sit I am today a healthy woman."

"My family and relatives wonder if I am the same person I was four years ago, when I could do no work on account of nervousness. Now I am doing my own housework, take care of two babies—one twenty the other two months old. I am so busy that I hardly get time to write a letter, yet I do it all with the cheerfulness and good humor that comes from enjoying good health."

"I tell my friends it is to Postum I owe my life today."

"Read 'The Road to Wellville' in Pigeon, 'There's a Reason.'"

"Ever read the above letter? A new one appears from time to time. They are genuine, true, and full of human interest."

FORESTRY BUREAU PLANS PATROLLING OF STATE FORESTS

Will Ask Legislature for Appropriation to Provide Means for Conservation of Forests.

The Wisconsin Board of Forestry will urge the next legislature to provide a forest fire patrol in northern Wisconsin to cost approximately $250,000 a year. This announcement was made today by E. M. Griffith, state forester in an address at the Lake States Forest Fire Conference in St. Paul on the subject, "Forest Protective Legislation Proposed by Wisconsin." The board is formulating an extensive fire prevention system which it hopes the state will adopt and which will obligate the state to exercise its police powers so as to protect not only its own timberlands but those of all its citizens as well.

Mr. Griffith said 1,200,000 acres were burned over in 1908 in this state with a loss in timber and young growth of $9,000,000. Reports for 1910 indicate at least 1,000,000 acres have been burned over and the financial loss will amount to several million dollars, to say nothing of the loss of the industries which depend upon the forests for their raw material and the still greater ultimate loss through the destruction of young growing timber.

"We must prevent, as far as possible the starting of forest fires," said Mr. Griffith in his address, "and therefore the state board of forestry of Wisconsin has decided to urge upon our legislature the great importance and necessity of providing a forest fire patrol in northern Wisconsin, upon the following lines:

"A chief forest fire patrol, appointed by and under the supervision of the state board of forestry, with headquarters at some central point. He should be a practical woodsman, with a wide knowledge of the northern part of the state, and the ability to handle men. He should be supplied with an office and such clerical help as may be necessary. In each of twenty-two or more of the northern counties, there should be at some central point a head county fire patrol, in charge of the work in his county. He should be obliged to keep one or more saddle horses, and cover every part of his county at stated intervals."

"Under the direct supervision and aid of the head patrol in each county would be county forest fire patrols, varying in number according to the size of the county, and the amount of forest land to be protected, sufficient in number so that each man would not have over 40,000 acres of land to patrol. For the twenty-two northern counties which it is proposed that the patrols shall cover, it is expected that at least three hundred and twenty-two men will be required. The plan is that all these men shall be secured from lumber companies who operate only in winter, as thus their best men would be given work every summer, the state would secure the services of trained woodsmen, and both the state and the lumber companies would gain the great advantage of having permanent men upon whose ability they could count. Each county patrol would have a given territory to look after and for which he would be responsible, they would be mounted so as to patrol quickly, and get to a fire with the least possible delay. They should be instructed to at once call upon every settler in their territory, explain the fire laws thoroughly, and in every way try to make the settlers appreciate they are working for their interest and want their hearty cooperation."

"As soon as funds are available, telephone lines should be built to connect all the patrol camps or cabins, so that the head patrol could call all his men together at any point in the county to fight fire, and where ever possible watch towers should be built, where men would be stationed in dangerously dry times to immediately report signs of fire in any direction. Such watch towers have been built by the lumbermen in Maine and have proved very useful."

"During wet seasons when there is practically no danger from forest fires the head patrol in each county should call his men together and clear up old logging roads, logging railroad rights of way, trails, etc., so that they could be used as firelines. This is very important, as our experience in fighting fires for the last few years has proved over and over again that the men are seriously handicapped in checking fires promptly from the fact that there are so few roads kept clear of brush, and therefore they have no fire line to fall back upon in case of necessity. Much good can also be done by felling old snags, which are the means of spreading fire to a great distance in heavy wind, and also by burning at favorable times heavy and dangerous slash where it is a constant menace to adjoining timber or to other property."

It is proposed to include in the law provision giving the state board of forestry power to order the burning of dangerous slash a rule prohibiting the setting of fires by anyone from April 1 to Dec. 1 (except for warming the person or cooking food) without a permit from a patrol or fire warden. From forty to seventy per cent of all the fires in Wisconsin forests in the last six years have been caused by settlers burning brush. The patrols would under proposed plan, be authorized to issue permits to set fire when it is safe to do so, and would be instructed to assist new settlers by showing them how to burn safely."

State forester Griffith also advocated a forest reserve for the state of about 2,000,000 acres in order to conserve the supplies for wood-using industries. For the purchase of this reserve and to pay for the proposed fire patrol system, the legislature will be asked to grant the state board of forestry the proceeds of a two-tenths of a mill tax for a period of twenty years. It is estimated that this will yield $600,000 yearly, and that the patrol system will cost $250,000 a year. This cost, said Mr. Griffith, amounts to from two to three cents per acre, and if the system is at all successful in protecting property it will in reality represent a very low rate of insurance.

Invention of the Salad.

Delicate cookery has long been known to flourish best in those lands where roast beef is hard to get. It was starvation that invented the salad, for example. Somebody had to eat grass or go hungry, so he put vinegar and oil, pepper and salt on it, and let it make dry bread seem like a dinner. I do not doubt that we shall bless the meat trust for a varied dietary are we get through with it, or it with us, whichever way the thing comes out.—Eugene Wood's "Social Whirl" in Hampton's.

Atoms.

Scientists say that an atom cannot be divided, but, all the same, we have seen some of a political type cut in two.

The Plague of Rubberers.

One may hope, in spite of the metaphors, to avoid the breath of the deadly upon trees; one may, by great good fortune, succeed in blocking the eye of the basilisk; one might even dodge the attention of Cerberus and Argus, but no man, dead or alive, can escape the gaze of the Rubberer.

Now York is the Cautehouse City. There are many, of course, who go their way, making money, without turning to the right or the left, but there is a tribe abroad wonderfully composed, like the Martians, solely of eyes and means of locomotion.—From "A Comedy in Rubber," by O. Henry.

COLEMAN FOUND DEAD IN HIS ROOM

Well Known Musical Composer and Director Kills Self.

LOST FORTUNE OF $3,000,000

His Act Was Evidently Premeditated as He Recently Asked Dr. Maps Easiest Way to End Life—Grieved for Dead Wife.

Pasadena, N. J., Dec. 7.—Charles Jerome Coleman, a young, blonde, millionaire, and well known musical director and composer, committed suicide in his room in a fashionable boarding house. His body was found after the odor of escaping gas from his room had been detected. In his pocket was one of his cards, on the back of which was written: "Suicide."

The body was discovered by Dr. Howard L. Maps, who lives next door and who was sent for when Mr. Coleman failed to respond to repeated raps on his door. Dr. Maps found Coleman lying on the bed with a gas jet open near him. He had been dead two or three hours.

Mr. Coleman left no explanation for his act, but he is said to have lost a fortune of $3,000,000 within the last few years and to have been in reduced circumstances. His wife died two years ago and friends say that he never entirely recovered from his grief. That his act was premeditated is evident from the fact that he recently asked Dr. Maps the easiest way to end one's life. The doctor made an evasive answer, not because he suspected that Mr. Coleman was thinking of suicide, he said, but because he considered it bad policy to tell anybody the easiest road to death.

Although a poor boy, Mr. Coleman won fame and fortune through his musical ability. He was educated at Harvard and for many years was the university organist.

For a number of years he was leader of a symphony society in Boston and later went to New York, opening a vocal studio in East Eighteenth street. Several musical productions netted him big money, but he was deprived of some of his royalties and also lost heavily in speculation. He had lived in Pasadena four years and was the organizer and first director of the Pasadena Glee club. He leaves two sons, George, of Philadelphia, and Charles Jerome, Jr., of Cincinnati.

TRIES IN VAIN TO SAVE BABY

Farmer's Wife Sustains Severe Burns After Being Overcome by Smoke.

Bloomington, Ind., Dec. 7.—In attempting to save the life of her 4-month-old babe, who was asleep in the house while the building was burning, Mrs. Charles Taylor, 43 years old, wife of a farmer, was overcome and severely burned about the head and face.

The child was cremated as the house was reduced to ashes. Mrs. Taylor was in the kitchen, which was detached from the dwelling, and the baby was sleeping in the other part of the house when sparks from a grate ignited the building.

RAILWAY TRAINS IN COLLISION

Passenger Hits Freight and Both Engines Are Derailed.

Holland, Mich., Dec. 7.—Traffic on the main line of the Pere Marquette railway, near Waverly, was tied up for several hours owing to a head-on collision between a northbound passenger and a southbound freight. Both trains were running slow and no one was injured.

The two engines were derailed and stripped of their pilots. The freight train was late in backing on a siding when the passenger train came along and a collision was unavoidable.

EXPLOSION SHAKES TOWNS

One Workman Believed Killed by Boston Water Works Blast.

Boston, Mass., Dec. 7.—A violent explosion of dynamite at Waban Hill, a Boston suburb, was felt in a dozen towns of Greater Boston with all the violence of an earthquake and gave rise to numerous reports of disaster.

The explosion occurred at a point where the Boston Water Works company is blasting for a new water supply tunnel. One workman is believed to have been killed and it is probable that the damage to the half-completed tunnel will be considerable.

GARY REFUTES RUMOR

Chairman of Steel Trust Says Gary Mills Will Not Close.

Admits Number of Men Employed Is Less Than Year Ago, But Needs Are Not So Great.

New York, Dec. 7.—Judge E. H. Gary, chairman of the United States Steel corporation, discussed conditions in the iron and steel industries. The exact occasion for Judge Gary's remarks was a rumor that the steel corporation had laid off 20,000 men or was about to do so and that the celebrated plant at Gary was soon to be shut down. These reports Mr. Gary emphatically denied, explaining, however, that such erroneous prophecies might arise from his own recent statement that the corporation was running in the neighborhood of 50 per cent of capacity.

In answer to a query as to the effect upon labor of the curtailment in steel production, Judge Gary said that at this time last year the corporation had in its employ about 215,000 men, whereas now it has only about 185,000 or 190,000. The last figures were compiled in August, since which time there has been practically no change in the number of men employed.

MANY HIT IN BATHTUB CASE

Individuals and Firms Accused at Detroit of Controlling Output.

Detroit, Dec. 7.—The federal grand jury here indicted thirty-two individuals and sixteen firms alleged to control 85 per cent of the annual output of bathtubs in the United States.

This is one of the blindest hauls as far as individual prosecutions are concerned, but the department of justice has over made under the anti-trust law. If the officers are convicted they will be liable to jail sentences and the department will, no doubt, bend every effort to have such punishment meted out instead of fines. The sixteen companies also were indicted in corporate ones.

HUGE COPPER MERGER

Properties with Capital of $26,500,000 Involved in Deal.

Deal Consummated at Meeting of Directors of Companies Concerned Held in City of Chicago.

Chicago, Dec. 7.—A copper deal, involving properties capitalized at $26,500,000 was consummated here at a meeting of the directors of the companies involved. Under the terms of the consolidation agreement reached the Superior and Pitsburg copper mine at Bisbee, Ariz., will be merged with the Calumet and Arizona property, which adjoins it. The exchange was made on a basis of approximately three and one-half to one.

By consolidating the two properties, the operating expenses of each will be very materially reduced. The Calumet and Arizona company owns a large smelter which is at present handling the ore of both mines, and has approximately $1,000,000 cash on hand. The other company has no smelter and no cash, but has considerable more property than the purchasing company.

BIG BREWERY IS IN FLAMES

Firemen Battle to Save the Property Around Brewing Plant.

Menominee, Mich., Dec. 7.—The Leisen & Hines Brewing company's plant is in flames. Indications are that it will be totally destroyed.

The loss is estimated at $200,000; insurance, $100,000. Every effort is being made to save the surrounding property.

FRAUDS CHARGED IN OHIO ELECTION

Boaton Democratic Candidates File Sensational Charges.

CONTEST NOTICES ARE SERVED

Taking of Depositions to Prove Fraud Charges Will Begin on Dec. 10.—Sweeping Violations of Election Laws Alleged.

Cincinnati, Dec. 7.—Four thousand fraudulent votes were cast in favor of the Republican candidates for the legislature in Cincinnati and Hamilton county at the last election, according to formal notices of contest which have been served on Republican candidates by the Democratic candidates. Investigation, it is said, shows:

Three thousand votes were cast by men who either directly or indirectly received money or other valuable considerations for so doing.

Fifteen hundred men voted more than once.

Three thousand men marked their ballots so they might be identified.

One thousand votes which were cast for the Democrats were wrongfully counted for the Republican candidates.

Many election booths were located in saloons and intoxicating liquors were sold in these places while votes were being cast.

Men were permitted to congregate within 100 feet of the polls and interfered with and intimidated voters.

It is announced that the taking of depositions to prove these charges will begin Dec. 10.

ARREST CHINESE PARTY

Fifteen Persons Taken While Being Smuggled Ashore.

Customs Officers Secure Statements of Revolting Nature from Women Kidnapped by White Dealer.

San Francisco, Dec. 7.—Customs officers have secured statements from some of the Chinese women who were brought over surreptitiously on the steamer Manchuria and who were caught while being smuggled ashore. In the party of smuggled Chinese were seven men and eight women. The women were mainly orphan girls, kidnapped in the straits of Hong Kong just before the sailing of the steamer. One girl was drugged and carried aboard the ship like a bale of goods.

All fifteen were put in a storage room only 14 feet square on board the steamer, and any one, except a Chinaman, would have died in a few days, as there was no light and little ventilation. Food and drink were thrust through a hole in the wall. Conditions in this veritable black hole were said to be terrible.

One man, supposed to be a white dealer in coolie slaves, had charge of these Chinese and would have made about $500 on each man and $1,000 on each girl, could he have landed them.

New York, Dec. 7.—The meeting of delegates to the National Council of the Aero Club of America, held at the Waldorf, to elect a chairman, resulted in such a bitter contest between the two rival candidates, Cortland Field Bishop and Clifford H. Harmon, that after an eight-hour session the delegates picked Robert J. Collier as a compromise candidate lest the national council be disrupted.

The Paris directory offers similar surprises. It contains hairdressers who rejoice in the names of Charlemagne and Lamar-tine; Justian is a baker, Lucine a millman, Leona a spirit merchant, Daudet a maker of lemonade, Berthe a bootmaker, Bolander a grocer, and Dumas a furniture dealer.

EXCESSIVE MASTICATION MAY BE INJURIOUS

Hurried eating is admitted by Prof. Metchnikoff, the distinguished authority on longevity, to be a cause of ill health and premature senility, but excessive mastication he says is also injurious, as comparative physiology teaches, producing a disease common in Fletcherites, called "Gradyfoggy." Thorough mastication is undoubtedly beneficial, but the exclusion of waste, which excites the normal activity of the intestine and, more important, perhaps, which removes the influence upon the nervous system exerted by the passage of the defecate, with its far reaching sympathetic influence upon the nervous system—the exclusion of considerable amount from the food is likely to prove ultimately injurious.

FIRE DESTROYS ART GALLERY

Home of R. W. Downing in Partial Ruins as Result of Blaze.

Philadelphia, Dec. 7.—Flames on the fourth floor of the house of Robert W. Downing, 1621 Locust street, president of the Colonial Trust company and former controller of the Pennsylvania Railroad company, drove him and his family out into a snow storm and resulted in serious damage to the many costly works of art which crowded the Downing home.

It also interrupted several social functions in the neighboring houses. The firemen were handicapped by the storm, but succeeded in confining the damage to the art gallery and two or three other rooms.

Don't Buy Land at $100 Per Acre in Rock County When You Can Buy Better Land at $32 to $40 Per Acre in Minnesota

There is no misrepresentation here. Every statement will be substantiated by a visit to this land. Call and talk it over. I will tell you all about the land as I have just returned from a trip of personal inspection. If you will take this trip and you do not find the land exactly as I represent it, your railroad fare both ways will be refunded.

This land is in Polk County, Minnesota, in the Red River Valley, one of the richest sections in the Northwest. The soil is virgin and is better soil than Rock county soil. All the improvements, such as rural routes, schools, roads and other buildings, are in. The houses, barns and other buildings are as good as Rock County buildings. There is an abundant rainfall, so much so that the state and county have put in a complete drainage ditch system. Some of the best Rock county farmers who have visited this land have already purchased land here. We will give you reference.

RURAL TEACHERS IN SUCCESSFUL MEETING

Many Valuable Suggestions Contributed
By Speakers At Evansville
Last Saturday.

(Special to this Gazette.)

Evansville, Dec. 6.—The sectional meeting of country teachers held in the Evansville high school assembly room on Saturday, December 3, was entirely successful and distinctly a profit to all who were in attendance. The first number consisted of music given by the third, fourth and sixth grade children under the direction of Miss Majorie Walker. Mr. Moore gave an interesting and helpful discussion of the topic "What the Community has a Right to Expect from Teachers." Mr. Moore has been a teacher himself and is now clerk of his board, so he is in a position to talk with some authority. Miss Nina Worthington gave a brief discussion of Mr. Moore's address and brought out some good points. Mr. Grant Howard presented some practical work in fifth grade language. As this is Mr. Howard's first year in the work he is entitled to a good deal of credit for the way in which he conducted his exercises. The exercises were discussed by Miss Jewell Kelley of Evansville, in the absence of Miss Pearl Hoffel, who was unable to be present. This closed the program for the forenoon, and an intermission until 1:30 was taken.

The afternoon session was opened with instrumental music by Miss Majorie Wilder, and her brother, Lloyd Wilder. Their playing was much enjoyed by the audience. Supt. Antidell was present at this session and he took Mr. Thorne's place in considering the teaching of civics. The superintendent made several excellent points of value to the teachers. His remarks were discussed by Prin. J. H. Lusher of Postville, gave a well-worked out answer to the question, "Is the State Graded School an Improvement over the Regular District School?" If so, in what ways? Mr. Lusher was entertainingly humorous in part and he favored consideration strongly as every teacher or subject does. Supt. Antidell and Prin. Lusher discussed the subject. Miss Belle Green of Evansville, gave a very interesting reading which was well received by the teachers. Supt. Antidell, "Notes from the Field Work" were practical and usable by every teacher present. Such a talk coming directly from the Superintendent is of special value to the country teachers.

Prin. F. J. Lowth read a paper on the "Relations of District Schools to High Schools." He made it clear that the two schools should co-operate and that when the student was graduated from the district school he should be thoroughly prepared to take high school work. He emphasized the fact that the chief aim of the public school should be, not to fit the child for college, but for a useful life. He contended that the student should be taught more that is practical and holds that courses in manual training, agriculture and domestic science should be included in the course of study of both the district and high schools. Prin. Lowth's paper was replete with sensible ideas and practical suggestions and was followed by a short talk by Mr. Antidell. Supt. Antidell is to be congratulated upon having worked out this idea of sectional meetings so successfully. The meetings are sure to prove valuable, and this Evansville meeting was surely a good example of the good which may come out of such gatherings.

Mustard Seed.

Mustard seed is sown in Holland in March and April. It blossoms like rape, but the plant is stronger. The crop as a rule is ready for harvest in August or September. The plants are cut and the seeds dried on the shrubs of the plants, or perhaps more generally, the shrubs are put together in small piles and thus dried in the fields.

Lord Loveland Discovers America

By C. N. AND A. M. WILLIAMSON

Copyright, 1910, by Doubleday, Page & Company. Copyright, 1910, by the McClure Company.

"If you'll trust me this afternoon for the price of a breakfast," Val answered, trying to speak lightly.

"Oh! you say," "I didn't ask you to pay, Pity!" "I can't invite a friend to have a meal without any one making a fuss."

"Very well; I'll accept your invitation with thanks, provided you'll breakfast with me," said Val naughtily as if he were addressing a duchess—or a popular chorus girl.

"My! I couldn't do that," answered Isadora. "I'd be wild if I got to know I eat a meal in the restaurant. We've a party upstairs," she went on, with a pretty air of impudence, "and the hired girl brings our meals. But you'll be seeing me soon again," she reassured Loveland. "I shall be at the desk in ten minutes."

Not fifteen minutes had passed when Miss Alexander, alias Solomon, reappeared, this time in all her glory, panting with haste and the smugness of her stings (perhaps she had drawn them in extra tight), yet smiling in conscious beauty.

"My, but you are got up to kill this morning!" exclaimed Bill Willing, and the fair Isadora darted a vexed glance at him, for she had wanted the "sweet" to believe that this gorgeousness was her daily toilet.

"Now the show's ready to begin," she announced with a smile and a glance—all, all for Loveland. And she was so "fascinatingly" handsome in her richly developed young beauty that Val, despite the revolt of his fastidiousness, admired her reluctantly.

Inclined to be reserved at first, it soon occurred to Loveland that, since any part in a storm was better than no part, he had better enlist Miss Alexander's aid. In response to her bids for confidences he said that he had landed in America yesterday and had gone to the Waldorf-Astoria, to find on his arrival that his luggage had been stolen out of his luggage by an English servant. He added that his London bankers had been dilatory about instructing their New York correspondents; that when the hotel people, for some extraordinary reason known only to themselves, demanded immediate payment he had been practically penniless and had walked out in a rage, leaving everything, even his overcoat. He kept his real name and title a secret.

She, with quick feminine instinct, recognized the vast social distance between "Mr. Gordon" and Bill Willing more poignantly than did Bill himself, who had now almost forgotten it in friendly association. But even so, to have sitting at one of her father's marble topped tables, hungrily eating a breakfast on her invitation, a young man who could engage a cabin on the Mauretania and a suite at the Waldorf-Astoria, seemed like a brilliant dream. She had never before seen anything quite so gallant and aristocratic looking as Bill Willing's friend and longed to attach him to herself in some way.

She offered to send a district messenger to the Waldorf-Astoria for the telegram Mr. Gordon was expecting and any letters which might have arrived. "He can bring you the lot," she arranged, "and then you can send him to your bank unless they make you show up to be identified. Anyhow, you can wait here for news. You can go on sitting where you are, or you can come and stay by me at the desk if the tables fill up with folks for breakfast."

Loveland's face slowly reddened and his eyes grew troubled.

"You needn't mind about the money for the messenger," she said quickly. "You can pay me back afterward, if you're so awful proud."

"Why, of course I'd pay you back," Val assured her. "But—the fact is—he hesitated, trying to find a way out of the tangled web "Mr. Gordon" had woven—"the fact is, I—(he wondered if he could bear to go to the hotel and thus escape the difficulty about the name, but pictured himself arriving in evening dress by broad daylight and felt his gorge rise at the degradation—"the fact is anything coming for me at the Waldorf will have on it the name of Loveland, 'The Marquis of Loveland' will be the address on my letters."

"My goodness, you did fly high!" exclaimed Isadora, dimpling. "I guess it's no wonder they gave you a whole suit" (she pronounced it "moot") "of rooms. But that's all right. You put on a card what you want the messenger boy should do, and you needn't be afraid to trust him. These little fellows are safe as banks."

Isadora saw that Bill had the food he liked for breakfast—a steaming pile of buckwheat cakes trimmed round the edges with crisp brown lace and cooling sleep at every pore. Also she sent him a copy of the New York Light without having even glanced at the front page, although a "gentleman friend" who had paid her a great deal of attention last summer was at the beginning of his trial for a really exciting murder.

When the messenger came back Mr. Gordon's face grew even more blank until it hardened into an expression of hopelessness. She was sure that the boy had brought neither letter nor telegram and that something had gone very wrong indeed with her mysterious guest's calculations.

"Then, take this and pay the messenger," she whispered. "I guess your friend's had a disappointment."

Bill obeyed, but did not at once come back. When the youth had been paid and had shot away up the street as if through a pneumatic tube Bill lingered in consultation with the pale young man at the table.

"Something's up," Isadora said to herself in an agony of curiosity. But what the "something" was she could not find out till breakfast was over and the room clear of customers.

"The cable I expected hasn't arrived," explained P. Gordon. "It's all right, of course, when I come to think of it, and I'm not really worried, for I haven't paid enough attention to the difference of time between London and New York. I must send again later in the day, when there will be letters, too, perhaps, and people's visiting cards. Meanwhile—"

"Meanwhile stay where you are and make yourself at home," cut in Isadora hospitably. Nevertheless she was anxious when the thought of her father and the inevitable moment of his coming downstairs, heavily footed with ill-mannered and "cross as a bear with a sore head." Pa would want to have the beautiful young man in evening clothes satisfactorily explained, and it was borne in upon the girl that he would be rather difficult to explain. Nonpaying people and things were always difficult to explain to Alexander, especially when he was under the weather. But there was one way out of the scrape, and Isadora watched at it suddenly with a leap of the heart. All might be well should she prevail upon Mr. Gordon to accept another loan from her—if he liked to call it a loan!

She had been saving up her allowances to buy a new ball dress and had already set her heart on the thing she would have. But she would deplete the sum by a third for Mr. Gordon's sake if he would take the money.

"Thank you, but Mr. Willing has given me a piece of good advice," said Val. "If it hadn't been for him I shouldn't have thought of it perhaps. He suggests my pawnning a few things I have on me."

Now was Isadora's time to speak, and she offered her alternative suggestion, but with some stammering and confusion. As soon as he gathered the drift of her faltering words he broke in, thanking her sincerely, saying that she was most awfully kind, but he couldn't trespass any further upon her goodness. According to Willing, there was a pawnshop just round the corner. They two would go there immediately, and then, with money to pay his debt to her, as well as tide over unforeseen delays, he would be glad to come back for a time.

Luckily for Loveland's fortitude, however, the ordeal—or the out of doors part of it—was brief. He was whisked round the corner and hurried mercifully into a dingy den which Bill Willing seemed to regard as a kind of "home from home," or, at the least, a cold storage warehouse.

Loveland donned his shirt of studs, took the gold links out of his cuffs and produced his watch, asking almost humbly how much would be allowed for the lot.

The watch was of gun metal; the sleeve links, the simplest he had owned, were destitute of precious stones, and the pawnbroker, having examined the offered objects with an air of disparagement, mentioned the sum of $9. When urged to make a higher bid he remarked that he was "no Santa Claus" and at last showed himself so indifferent that Loveland was glad to exchange his despised belongings for $1 less than the sum at first refused.

"I expect the old Curmudge will be on for his scene by the time we get back," said Bill as they returned to Alexander the Great's after an absence of nearly an hour, during which time Loveland had provided his shirt front with cheap celluloid studs.

But Curmudge, alias Mr. Solomon, alias Alexander, was still absent. His understudy, Izzy of the almond eyes, continued to reign alone over a king-dom of marble topped tables and empty red chairs awaiting their next occupants, but sixty minutes had changed her oddly. She looked up with a nervous start when Loveland came in with Bill and hid in her lap the newspaper which had been lying before her on the desk.

XIII.—Diet Hints For the Home

By EUGENE L. FISK, M. D.
Copyright, 1910, by American Press Association.

That all softening, overpowering knoll. The tooth of the soul—the dinner bell.—Lyon.

Too often the "tooth of the soul" invites us to the "tooth" of the stomach. The pure food laws protect us in a great measure from poisonous foods, but they do not prevent us from manufacturing "toxins" or poisons in our own systems by our habits of eating.

It will be many long years before the last word has been said on dietetics, the vegetarian, nutarian, fruitarian, long chowers and short chowers to the contrary notwithstanding. Nevertheless a few general principles to which the everyday man may hold fast are pretty well established.

In trying to feed rationally it is well, as in other lines of effort, to have some ideal or standard, and so before considering the relative value of foods it is necessary to have a definite idea of what really constitutes a food. A food may be defined as a substance that—

First.—Is digestible and nonpoisonous.

Second.—Furnishes energy or building material to the body.

Variation of Food.

Foods are divided chemically into two great classes, nitrogenous and non-nitrogenous.

The most important nitrogenous elements are known as proteins, of which the lean of meat and white of egg are examples. Some vegetables and grains also contain proteins, especially peas, beans, wheat, rye, corn, etc.

The non-nitrogenous elements are divided into fats, carbohydrates (sugars and starches) and salts.

In other words, we must find in our food the same elements that enter into the composition of the body. The folly of trying to live on any one particular kind of food will be apparent to any one who familiarizes himself with the constitution of the body and its needs. The proteins are required for building material and energy, the carbohydrates and salts for storage and energy and the fats and mineral elements for building purposes and to assist in the chemical processes and exchanges going on in the body.

What Is Digestion?

Digestion is the process of transforming food elements into substances that can be absorbed into the blood through the walls of the digestive tract. If the digestive functions are paralyzed food taken into the stomach acts simply as a foreign body and causes irritation and finally, by its decomposition, poisoning.

The digestive processes are carried on by substances whose exact form and constitution are unknown, termed enzymes, or ferments.

But digestion does not begin in the stomach. The saliva contains a very important enzyme, ptyalin, which converts starch into malt sugar. The importance of thoroughly chewing all starch foods, such as cereals, vegetables, bread, pastry, potatoes, etc., will at once be apparent.

"Counting your chews," however, is not advised. The act of chewing should be natural and subconscious. If the attention is directed too closely to the mechanical act of chewing or, in fact, if the mind dwells too intently on the subject of digestion the normal functions are retarded. Count your chews some time and note if your jaws do not ache by the time you reach the twentieth. Count your steps in walking and note whether your limbs do not quickly tire.

If the internal activities of our bodies could be seen in their entirety, even for a few brief moments, it is probable that an unutterable weariness would oppress and stifle us.

Prolonged chewing of meat does not appear to be required. The favorable results from experimenting along this line are probably due to the fact that less meat was taken. The saliva does not digest meat. On the contrary, by prolonged chewing meat is thoroughly saturated with the alkaline secretion of the mouth, which would appear to render it less digestible in the stomach, where digestion can only operate in an acid medium. A good plan to follow is to chew cereals, vegetables, bread, potatoes, pastry and all starchy foods until they disappear down the gullet. This requires no mental effort, and the best possible results will follow. Food eaten in this fashion is more pleasing to the palate, and that itself is stimulating to all the digestive functions.

Stomach Digestion.

The stomach enzyme is "pepsin," which converts proteins into soluble substances called peptones. The digestion of starchy foods is checked in the stomach by the hydrochloric acid of the gastric juice, but the starch digestion is resumed in the small intestine.

Intestinal Digestion.

Here it is acted upon by several enzymes, which complete starch digestion and also convert ordinary cane sugar into grape sugar.

Protein digestion also proceeds in the intestine, and fats are digested and emulsified so that they can be absorbed.

As previously stated, all these food elements are required either for energy, building material, storage or to carry on the chemical and physical exchanges in the tissues. During these processes the food elements are broken up and many of them literally burned or oxidized, just as a candle burns, with the formation of carbon dioxide and water.

A great deal of scientific experiment is being conducted to accurately determine the most satisfactory dietary for man. The subject is too complex to be minutely discussed in this paper, and such discussion would only confuse without benefiting the average man. We may trust science to solve this problem as it has solved others and in the meantime enjoy our meals without worrying about them so long as we avoid some of the more prominent dietetic errors.

Diet Hints.

First as to meat consumption: Meat is not a poison. There is no need to shudder every time you indulge in a beefsteak. On the other hand, it is known to contain certain substances, extraneous which if taken in excess may throw an extra burden on the kidneys and which seem to have some influence in causing a gouty condition.

Meat is palatable and easy to prepare; consequently there is a tendency to overindulge in it. There is a well grounded belief among medical men that meat once a day is sufficient, especially during middle life and old age. Where gout, rheumatism or kidney trouble exists meat should be sparingly taken. In such conditions light meats are less harmful and boiled meats better than roasted or broiled. Fried meat is a dietetic atrocity, even for the strongest stomach.

Value of Vegetable Diet.

Many vegetables are rich in proteins and from a chemical standpoint quite as nutritious as meat. But here is where the rub comes in—a food must be digestible or its protein contents are valueless. "Boiled baked beans" are rich in proteins, but a steady diet of that delectable dainty would be a severe test for some stomachs.

Vegetables as a class contain a great deal of cellulose and fiber which cannot be digested. This serves a useful purpose, as it stimulates the action of the intestines. By increasing the proportion of vegetables in the diet the middle age approaches and the vital activities begin to slow down the protracted elements in the food are reduced and there is less burden laid upon kidneys and arteries.

Fats and sugar are energy producers and very valuable foods for this purpose. Taken in excess, however, they interfere with digestion and may prove especially harmful in obesity, gout, rheumatism and kidney trouble.

Sugar is likely to cause acid dyspepsia if taken too freely and in concentrated form.

Fat retards the secretion of gastric juice. Greasy fried foods are for this reason objectionable.

Alcohol produces energy, but at a high cost. It may be excluded from consideration as a food, since it is injurious to the body cells.

The Measure of Food Energy.

It seems hardly proper to close this article without a reference to the famous "calorie." This is the amount of heat required to raise one liter of water 1 degree centigrade. It is the unit of food energy and is used in stating the amount of heat any particular food will give when burned.

According to authorities who are not extremists, a man weighing 155 pounds, moderately active, requires about 2,800 calories. This would be represented by the following:

Bread, one pound; meat, four ounces; egg, four ounces (two small ones); cheese, two ounces; potatoes, one pound; butter or fat, two ounces; milk, one-quarter pint; sugar, one-half ounce; tea, coffee.

Summary.

Good teeth, natural or artificial, are more necessary than knives and forks. Eat slowly, chew starchy foods thoroughly, eat meat once a day, water in moderation at meals, freely between meals, less meat and sweets and more vegetables at middle life. Do not worry about your food; do not eat when very tired; do not exercise just after eating. A mixed diet is best unless disease calls for special diet; avoid strange, weird diet fads; more muscular work calls for more food, especially meat and sugars; less muscular work, less food; moderate eating for brain work; neither starvation nor gluttony is in accord with science and common sense.

Black Eyes at Eton.

In proposing "The Imperial Forces" at the annual valedictory dinner at Windsor, Mr. R. A. Bannan, an old Etonian, said they wanted every boy in England to be able to defend himself, and practise the noble art of self-defense. He had a black eye in his day, and he did not see half enough black eyes at Eton.—London Telegraph.

Best Cough Medicine for Children.

The season for coughs and colds is now at hand and too much care cannot be used to protect the children. A child is much more likely to contract diphtheria or scarlet fever when he has a cold. The quicker you cure his cold the less the risk. Meritol Cough Remedy is the sole reliance of many mothers, and few of those who have tried it are willing to use any other. Mrs. J. D. Mullaney of Decorah, Ia., says: "I have never used anything other than Meritol Cough Remedy for my children and it has always given good satisfaction." This remedy contains no opium or other narcotic and may be given as confidently to a child as to an adult. For sale by the Reliable Drug Co., Druggists. Members American Drug & Press Association.

Janesville Has to Bow to the Inevitable—Scores of Citizens Prove It.

After reading the public statement of this representative citizen of Janesville given below, you must come to this conclusion: A remedy which cured years ago, which has kept the kidneys in good health since, can be relied upon to perform the same work in other cases. Read this:

Mrs. William Johns, 310 N. Academy St., Janesville, Wis., says: "About two years ago I had an attack of kidney trouble and at that time I got a supply of Doan's Kidney Pills at the People's Drug Co. The use of only two boxes cured me. Other members of my family have taken Doan's Kidney Pills with satisfactory results, and I therefore know this remedy to be a reliable one." (Statement given in August, 1908.)

The Benefit Lasted. Mrs. Johns was interviewed on September 23, 1910, and she said: "I gladly confirm, my former endorsement of Doan's Kidney Pills. They permanently rid me of kidney complaint and during the past two years, I have had no further need of a kidney medicine."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States. Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.
